IN BRIEF

CJC's SNAG (Student Nursing Association of Georgia) is sponsoring a "Toys for Tots" campaign which began yesterday and will continue through December 5th.

Boxes for the toys are located in the lounge area of the "C" Building and the entrance to the "D" Building. Students are urged to contribute any new or used toys that are repairable. The toys will be distributed by the Salvation Army to Underprivileged tots at Christmas.

Show the tots you really care-support SNAG's "Toys for Tots" campaign.

A program on parental guidance to handling the drug abuse problem will be conducted in room G-132, starting at 8 p.m. on Monday, November 24.

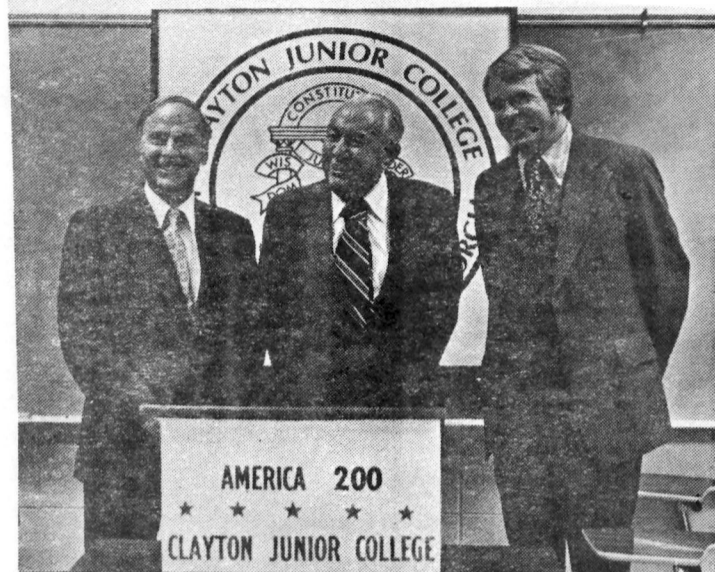

Co-sponsored by the CJC Department of Public Safety, the Office of Community Services, and the Clayton County Police Department, the special four-hour program is titled "A Parental Guide to Handling Drug Abuse".

It will be open to the public without charge.

Three principle speakers will highlight the program. Bill Hart, Assistant Director of CJC's Department of Public Safety, will be joined by Jim Thompson of the Community Relations Division of the Clayton County Police Department, and Dr. Donald F. Sille, an Atlanta psychologist and former Director of the Renewal House.

All CJC students and their parents are particularly encouraged to attend.

Next time you walk out the cafeteria door, don't be surprised if you come face-to-face with a poster that reads "Brush Now or Pay Later" or "Your Dental Hygienist says, Keep America Smiling." It's just one of many posters made by Clayton dental hygiene students to remind everyone at CJC about good dental health. Look for these posters after lunch every week, and if you've just eaten a piece of cheesecake, go rinse your mouth. Or better yet, bring your toothbrush.

SENATOR SAM SPEAKS AT CJC

Sheila Buschman

On Wednesday, October 29th, Clayton Junior College had the privilege of having former Senator Sam Ervin as a guest speaker.

Senator Ervin kicked off the Bicentennial program at CJC with a speech entitled "The Principles of 1776 in Action".

Before the Senator's speech a dinner and press conference were held. The dinner that was given in honor of Senator Sam Ervin was attended by a select number of faculty and students. At the dinner the Senator spoke openly about his experiences in politics. He also answered numerous questions during dinner.

In a speech the Senator gave after dinner he commented on education. He believes everyone should get all the education he can. "Someone can take the world, but can never take our education."

Senator Ervin also spoke about the young people of the country. He stated, "I never leave a college without taking with me new faith in the country."

Following the dinner was a press conference. The Senator was escorted in to the room where the press conference was held by the Dean of Students, Robert C. Bolander. He was then immediately asked questions by the media. Channels 2 and 5 had coverage along with the Atlanta Journal and Atlanta Constitution. There were various other local newspapers there covering Senator Sam Ervin as well.

During the press conference Senator Ervin commented on a variety of subjects.

A topic that the Senator became famous for was Watergate. When asked about it he said, "It would be right interesting to see how he (Nixon) would tell it."

The Senator also touched on more of a recent issue, the crisis of New York. He thinks New York should take a cut back on their payroll and exercise fiscal controls.

On foreign issues the Senator thinks that the U.S. worries too much about what the rest of the world thinks of them. He thinks the U.S. should stop trying to play policeman in world affairs.

Finally at 8:30 Senator Sam Ervin's speech got under way. He opened his speech with a few light jokes setting his audience at ease.

Proceeding with his speech, the Senator used the word "freedom" along with the phrase "the pursuit of happiness" to help explain how the principles of 1776 are in action today.

Senator Ervin also discussed the economical, personal, political, intellectual, and spiritual freedom that each individual of this country for the past 200 years has experienced. "Freedom is the most precious value of civilization," stated Senator Ervin.

At the end of the Senator's speech there was a question and answer session. Following this was a reception opened to the public to meet the Senator.

Miller Elected as Secretary of GACLEA

Robert M. 'Bob' Miller, Director of Public Safety at Clayton Junior College, has been re-elected as secretary of the Georgia Association of Campus Law Enforcement Administrators (GACLEA). Miller was re-elected at the quarterly meeting of the state-wide organization conducted at the University of Georgia in Athens last month.

Director of a seven-member staff of officers at the Morrow institution, Miller will be serving as secretary for the GACLEA for the second consecutive year.

During the state-wide meeting, Miller conducted a seminar on "Innovative Parking Measures - Large Universities and Small Colleges."

Elected president of the organization of 33 member institutions was Bill Tynan, Director of Public Safety at the Medical College of Georgia. Asa Boynton, Assistant Director of the Division of Public Safety at the University of Georgia, was named vice-president; and James Dearing, Chief of Security at Georgia State University, was re-elected treasurer.

New Faculty Members at CJC

Two new full-time instructors joined the faculty of the Division of Humanities at Clayton Junior College at the start of the Fall Quarter, according to Dr. Billy R. Nail, Dean of the College.

Dr. Jacqueline A. Jones, a native of Greensboro, Ga., joined the English faculty and William M. Gore, a native of LaGrange, joined the music department.

Dr. Jones served as a teaching assistant at the University of Michigan last year, as an instructor of English at Northern Illinois University the year before, and as a teacher of English with the Green County (Ga.) Board of Education in 1971-72.

Named an Instructor of English at the Morrow institution, she received her bachelor's degree in English from Spelman College in 1970, her master's degree in English from the University of Michigan in 1971, and a Doctor of Arts degree in English from the University of Michigan earlier this year.

Gore served as Assistant Coordinator of Bands at Florida State University in 1973, and received his bachelor's degree in English Literature there in 1974. He received his master's degree in music, specializing in applied woodwinds, from Florida State this year.

Named as a temporary instructor of music at CJC, Gore teaches band, music appreciation, music theory, and applied instruments.

Fall Enrollment Shows Diversity

Paul Hinson

Quarterly statistics released by the Office of Public Information of Clayton Junior College reveal a wide diversity among the record enrollment of nearly 3600 students.

Clayton County continues to be the prime contributor of students with 1,973, almost 55% of the total, even though enrollment figures represent an addition of 732 students new to CJC. Fulton County contributed the second highest number of students, 1,067, which constituted an additional 30% of the total. Henry and Fayette Counties are in third and fourth place in student enrollment, contributing 178 and 158, respectively. Over 93% come from these four counties alone, despite the fact that an appreciable number of students are enrolled from six other counties, namely DeKalb, Coweta, Spalding, Douglas, Cobb and Rockdale. Overall, CJC registered students from 27 counties.

Over 60% of the students, 2,162, are males, while 1,435 are females. Figures indicate that 61% of the student body are single. One somewhat surprising was a higher married ratio found among males, nearly twice that of females. Of the entire enrollment, 1,185 males are single and 976 married, while 1,019 females are single and 416 married.

An unusually large percentage of students, 33%, are veterans enrolled in V.A. programs.

Of the total enrollment, 1,878 students are taking day classes only, 1,563 taking night classes only, and 157 are registered for both.

Letter to the Editor

Recently a "concerned" student relayed a message to the SGA, which is the Student Government Association: composed of students attending Clayton Junior College.

Dear Editor,

I saw your big "beat Apathy" ad. I don't really blame the students for being apathetic. Why should they vote? It's not really voting when an office is uncontested. I don't think it's right for a person to get an office simply because he runs. That's why I'm going to cast a blank ballot. But don't print this...please...other people might get the same idea and your hierarchy might collapse.

Clint Brantbury (Art Buckwall)

REPLY FROM SGA

Thanks! That's just what we all needed...such profound information. At first it was hard to take because it seemed like another put down. It's so easy for people to see the negative side of things, it seems, rather than the positive.

All the members of the SGA were sort of deflated of energy by this note; it was just a thorn in the foot. You know, what the h___, members of the SGA don't get anything except the satisfaction of trying to help people, especially students. They can't help the way an election goes. There must be some communication break-down among us all.

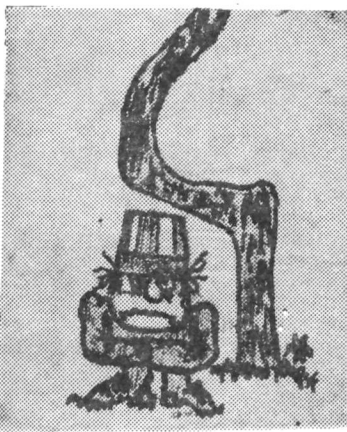

The election could have been advertised better, but with only a few people and a lack of knowledge in stimulating student interest, that's just the way it went. Those are the facts and if you have read this objectively, you can understand what a hassle it can be at times.

The first elections were uncontested because the "students" didn't run, not because the SGA is a hierarchy. I don't think anyone has a voice who doesn't practice what he preaches. Let's work together and life can be so much better.

SUPPORT S.G.A.

SGA drums up support for upcoming election during open house.

FACULTY NEWS

Dr. O. C. Lam III, Assistant Professor of Biology at Clayton Junior College, has been named Chairman of the Division of Natural Sciences and Mathematics, according to Dr. Harry S. Downs, President of the two-year institution near Morrow.

Dr. Lam, a member of the faculty since the college opened in the Fall of 1969, replaces Dr. Roy A. Dobyms who resigned to assume duties as Academic Dean at Carson-Newman College in Jefferson City, Tennessee.

Ratified by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia at its October meeting, the appointment of Dr. Lam became effective September 15. He had been serving as division coordinator since August 20.

The 35-year-old assistant professor becomes the first member of the original faculty at the college to advance through the ranks to the division chairmanship. Dr. Lam joined the faculty as an instructor of Biology and was promoted to an assistant professor in 1973.

"It gives me great pleasure to appoint one of our own outstanding faculty members to this important leadership position," Dr. Downs said in making the announcement.

As chairman of the Division of Natural Sciences and Mathematics at Clayton Junior College, Dr. Lam coordinates and supervises the faculties of chemistry, biology, mathematics, physics, computer science, nursing, and dental hygiene.

A native of Rome, Ga., Dr. Lam was graduated from Shorter College there in 1966 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Biology. While a member of the faculty at Clayton Junior College in 1972, he worked for and received the Doctor of Philosophy degree in Botany from the University of Georgia.

From 1966 until he joined the CJC college faculty, Dr. Lam conducted research under a National Science Foundation Fellowship. In addition, he has served as a teaching assistant at Shorter College and at the University of Georgia.

Mrs. Frances F. Bowen, Assistant Professor of Business Education at Clayton Junior College, has been named "Business Educator of the Year" for the Sixth District Georgia Business Education Association.

She was presented a plaque in recognition of her contributions in the field of Business Education at a meeting of the Association in Griffin recently. Mrs. Bowen was recognized for her work at the college in addition to her activities through the Georgia Business Education Association, Phi Beta Lambda, and other activities.

Mrs. Bowen joined the Clayton Junior College faculty when the college opened in the fall of 1969. A native of Carroll County, previously she taught at DeKalb Area Technical School, the University of South Carolina, Brenau College, and Braselton High School.

She received a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from Georgia State College for Women (now Georgia College) and a Master of Science degree in business education from the University of Tennessee.

Mrs. Bowen and her husband George, a professor at Morris Brown College in Atlanta, live on Whiteleigh Drive in DeKalb County. They have two sons, George II, a freshman at The Citadel, and Loyd, a junior at Henderson High School.

Spotlight on Banking and Finance

Mary Anne Vogtner

Clayton Junior College expanded its business program last year with the addition of a two-year career program in Banking and Finance. The program was developed under the leadership of President Downs with assistance from a "blue-ribbon" Advisory Board consisting of local bank presidents. The major is administered through the Division of Social Sciences.

The intent of this career program is to prepare a student for a higher entry level position in business and industry, to provide a student with a basic knowledge of business which may enhance possibilities for future advancement, to provide a program where many, though not all of the courses could be used to meet requirements of a baccalaureate degree and, last but not least, to help alleviate the shortage of trained individuals needed in the banking and financial profession in this geographical area. (The South Metro Atlanta area will be especially in need as the area grows and the recession passes.)

Although the program was initially tailored to prepare an individual for a career in banking, it also offers courses quite suitable for someone who might want to work for another type financial institution or in the financial office of almost any business. The program is broad-based enough to be appealing to a student who wants a general business background in preparation for venturing out and opening a small business. For example, courses are offered in the key areas of accounting, finance, marketing and management.

Presently, there are about 40 declared majors in the program. Tow of the majors received scholarships made available by The Clayton Junior College Foundation, Inc. The recipients were selected on the basis of past records of excellence and potential for future accomplishments in this career area.

Banking and finance majors are working toward the organization of a professional association to supplement the regular academic program. This organization would be open to all business majors. You will be hearing more about this in the near future.

A student interested in considering a banking and finance career may want to discuss the program further with Mr. John Feathers in G-110H. Students already majoring in the program are reminded to see Mr. Feathers before registration for winter quarter advisement. A course in Money and Banking is being offered for the first time next quarter. It is one of the career courses not offered on a regular quarterly basis.

Organization Formed For Newcomers

If you are returning to school or entering college for the first time after several years away from academic life, "We need you", says a group of students organizing a program to meet their needs and yours at CJC. Under the auspices of counselors Lorrie Hallman and Rosemary Layne a pilot group of students has held a couple of organizational meetings. The first regular meeting was held November 12, with Dr. Hallman discussing Scheduling, Goal Setting and Organization.

The group was born out of a need, expressed by a number of students, for help in solving the practical problems each faced in her unique situation and the common task of adapting to and fulfilling the multiple roles to be played by adults, particularly women, with home and family obligations, upon embarking on an academic career.

Regular meetings are scheduled bi-weekly during the regular quarter on Wednesday at 1:00 p.m. in the informal setting of the career library. The emphasis is on warmth and sharing but topics of singular interest will be considered at each session. The next meeting, on Wed. November 26, will take a creative look at Developing Study Skills, just in time for finals. It will be the final regular meeting of the Fall Quarter.

An organizational meeting for the first program of the Winter Quarter will be held during the quarter break on Wednesday, December 10. Winter Quarter meetings will begin January 7, 1976, with an introductory meeting in which newcomers will learn What We Are About, receive general information about the services available at CJC, and have a physical tour of the campus. Other topics anticipated for the Winter Quarter include: Assertiveness-training (two Sessions); Legal Issues; Changing Woman's Role; and Communication. Be alert for the exact times and dates of these programs. Anyone interested is welcome to attend any or all meetings. We are open to topic suggestions for the Spring Quarter and eager for you to share this learning experience with us.

TOM PARKS

Seriously, A Comedian

By: Jeff Cochran

To be honest, there are very few comedians around today that I find to be nothing else but insipid, embarrassing and most of all, boring. Sometimes I have felt "Sentenced" as a comedian opens a show at The Great Southeast Music Hall. In such a case I usually step into their Emporium and order a sandwich which causes me to realize they're getting more of my money because of a lousy opening performer. Wonder if they plan it that way . . . . .

Of course, I would be a prime candidate for turkey of the year if I failed to admire the works of comics Martin Mull and Steve Martin. But then both have been around awhile and have had ample time to pull their act together. With that in mind, and my general skepticism towards comedians, it seems unusual that I find a newcomer one of the most impressive comics to arrive on the scene over the last few years.

That comedian is Tom Parks, an Atlanta resident who began his career only two years ago on the stage of The Music Hall. From that very first time, Tom found the stage to his liking just as his audiences have been surprised and pleased with his performances. Perhaps the most appealing part of Tom's act is his good nature. This is evident right from the start, as is his zaniness. And the zany part is apparent as he walks on to the stage with a two pound avacado plant in his arms. From there it's easy rolling, for he claims the minute he grabs the microphone that he's home, and all the butterflies floating in his stomach over the previous two hours suddenly disappear.

When putting his talents in perspective, the fact is that he has only been working at his craft for two years. But one would not think so when observing his performance. He delivers the material with smoothness and ease, concentrating on topical items of the day, at times reminiscent of George Carlin and Robert Klein with his own style complimenting his emulations.

Only 25, Tom had never planned on a career in show business. He graduated from the University of Florida in 1973 with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Journalism. After graduating he moved to Atlanta looking for work. During that time he happened to visit The Music Hall for Harry Chapin's show. He saw how easily Chapin joked and cut up with the crowd between songs, and he thought, "I can do that." He explains that although he never thought of himself as a comedian, he knew that he was funny with friends in a living room situation. Now he just transfers the party situation to the stage. And he's done a good job of it.

Tom has headlined at the Music Hall and just recently performed at Nashville's Exit Inn, a very prestigious music club. He, along with Deborah McColl, was picked as Atlanta's representative artists for the regional National Entertainment Council meeting in North Carolina. Making it with the NEC is very important, considering they help book many entertainers on major college campuses in the country.

And it's nice to see his career meet such success at an early period. Tom takes his work seriously, seriously enough to refer to his act as just "cutting up". When a person demands in his contract rider that no cars shall be parked in the auditorium after the show has begun and flatly refuses to follow animal acts, you know where he's coming from. The same goes when he claims that he feels "playing golf with Alice Cooper is a sure sign of knowing I've made it". Tom Parks is serious — about making people laugh.

Along with writing for The Bent Tree, Jeff Cochran is also a staff writer for the Great Speckled Bird, Vibes and a frequent contributor to The Atlanta Gazette.

Johnny Rivers— New Lovers and Old Friends

By: Jeff Cochran

Eleven years of recording the best of car radio rock and Rivers continues to release fine rock and roll records, nothing more and nothing less. His most recent album, "New Lovers and Old Friends" serves as a fine example of his long time formula of remaking rock standards and yes, making them hits once again. The best from the new album are "It's The Same Old Song", "Help Me Rhonda" and "Can I Change My Mind". Included also is a nice rendition of "Spare Me A Little", originally recorded by Fleetwood Mac. Here Rivers used his voice to give the song just the right amount of urgency so that the selection does not seem contrived as nothing more than filler.

All the same he does fail on "You Can Get It If You Really Want". While Rivers is usually successful with R&B material, he should realize white boys cannot improve or even equal Jimmy Cliff's original. But otherwise "New Lovers And Old Friends" is a fine rock and roll album and that alone is enough.

CJC's BAND BEATS ON

The CJC Band is alive and well, and providing an outlet for tense junior collegians to unleash their pent-up musical emotions and get their groovies in. The Band appears, as if by magic, three times a week in G-101, the large lecture and rehearsal hall at the North end of the classroom building. From 11 to 12 each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, the ensemble proceeds to thread its way through the "gems of the concert repertoire" — standard band pieces, plus a goodly measure of popular music and other works that the average high school band never gets around to.

It's all for fun, and good music too — the Band has an "open-rehearsal" policy and wants new members, regardless of whether one is a whiz on his instrument.

A new innovation is the one day a week that the 25-member ensemble becomes a "Studio-Lab Band" and plays Pop, Jazz and Rock music, with a "Big Band" set-up featuring augmented woodwinds and a rhythm section.

In addition to personal fulfillment, the credit-hungry members receive a full hour's worth of University-System credit.

Each quarter the Band plays one concert; plans for Winter include a Concerto For Alto Saxophone and Band, with a guest artist. For the Spring there will be a (You guessed it) Bicentennial Concert featuring music of Leonard Bernstein and Charles Ives.

Chamber Choir To Perform

Sharon Ann Durbin

On Wednesday, November 26, the Chamber Choir, directed by Dr. Larry Corse, will perform Randall Thompson's The Testament of Freedom, a setting of four passages from the writings of Thomas Jefferson. This presentation will be in participation with the celebration of the Bicentennial.

The accompanists will be Doris Holloway, Director of Music, and Dr. Elena Zimmerman, coordinator of Fine Arts. The performance will be in room G-132.

The Chamber Choirs next off campus performance will be in December for the Clayton County Bar Association. In mid March, the choir will be performing John Gay's The Beggar's Opera, a musical play written during the time of the American Revolution. It is composed of many English Folk Songs. In February, the main performers of The Beggar's Opera will be attending the S.C.E.T.C. convention in South Carolina.

Membership for the concert choir will be open again Winter Quarter for interested students.

Drama Club to Present "Black Comedy"

by Kristia Steele

The 1975 Drama Club presents Black Comedy, a play by the modern British playwright Peter Shaffer. The production will be held November 19th at noon and 6:15 p.m., the 20th at 8:30 p.m., and the 21st at 8:00 p.m. in G-132 at Clayton Junior College. The play is a satirical comedy with an improbable plot. There are mistaken identities and the characters find themselves in an unusual situation, a power failure.

Black Comedy is the third play to be presented in the new theatre at CJC. In the fall of 1974, The American Dream and Sandbox, both by Edward Albee, were the first presentations in the G building theatre. The first major production with elaborate costumes, lighting, and scenery was William Shakespeare's Twelfth Night. Hopefully, the play Black Comedy will initiate a successful season.

SPORTS: CJC INTRAMURALS

by Lock Laughridge

Last week CJC sports were idle, as you can see in this picture. (Photo by B. Knowles)

Sunday afternoon witnessed some of the best volleyball games around. The spectators were very responsive to the fine play of participating teams. First action saw the Vandals take on the Knights with the Vandals coming out on top. In the second round, Tribunes II met their fate at the hands of the impressive Vandals. With two tough victories in their pockets, the Vandals lost to the fine Tribune I team in the championship game.

In the end, the champs were the Tribunes I team. Taking second place honors were the Vandals, followed by Tribunes II, and the Knights. The team members of the Tribunes II included: John Buck, Dan Buck, David Cooper, Ron Baily, Kelly Baker, Pete Crumbley, and Mike Dawson.

This tournament was a most successful one for the Intramural Program, thanks to those who watched and played.

For the past two weeks, we've seen the Huns completely dominate their foes. With such scores as 14-0 over the Knights and 34-0 over the Vandals, the Huns have certainly established themselves as the team to win it all. Hotly contesting these winners are the guys on the Tribunes I team. A final contest between these two would be fitting. Keep your fingers crossed, fans!

In other action, the Vandals slipped by the Tribunes II 13-7 and the Tribunes I, I said before, "a very rough contender", whaloped the punchless Knights 26 to 0. As the season winds down, it looks to be a two team fight for the regular season honors.

Intramurals this year has certainly been a successful program. Thanks to the ones who participated in the games and to those who watched, we've established a very stable program at CJC.

The end of the fall quarter is coming soon and we still have a few more events left on the calendar. Since the finish is so near I decided to tally up the teams' scores and place standings.

At this point, the Tribunes are leading in points obtained from the tournaments: 51 points in Badminton, 23 points in Tennis Doubles, and 18 from Volleyball.

The Knights are currently in second place with 17 points in Badminton, 12 in Tennis and 7 in Volleyball.

Third Place goes to the Huns, having only 17 points in Tennis.

The Vandals are holding down fourth and last place with 9 points in the Volleyball tournament.

These standings are only for fall quarter events with changes coming up every weekend in point totals.

NEED MONEY ???

Do you need money to continue your education or to get you started? There are several sources available here at Clayton Junior where money is available.

A few of these sources are Basic Grants, Regents' Scholarships, Nursing Programs and Work Study Programs. Probably the easiest and simplest to apply for would be the Basic Grants, Regents' Scholarships, and the Work Study Programs, according to the individual's needs.

To apply for a loan or grant, a student must be a Georgia resident, be in the upper 25% (grade average of B) and must be in financial need. Students who need money but aren't able to get a loan or grant, or who do not get one and still need money, the College Work Study Program is also available.

In this program, students work on campus, in the community or as a student aid. Their work schedule is determined by how much money is needed. Starting in January, students in this program will be making $2.20 an hour. Another great way for students to make money would be to tutor other students. There is a great need for tutors at CJC and the pay is good.

If you are interested in receiving financial aid and have questions, contact Mr. Larry Patterson in C-57.

SLALOM PLANNED BY SCC

On November 22nd at 1:00 p.m., the CJC sports car club will hold its first formal slalom of the year. The purpose of a slalom is to drive through a twisting course lined with rubber pylons in the shortest possible time. A second is added to the driver's total time for each pylon which is knocked over. The cars are classified according to engine size, car weight, etc. so that participants will be competing in similar cars. Trophies are usually awarded to the winners in each class. This year we are considering giving free tune-ups instead of trophies.

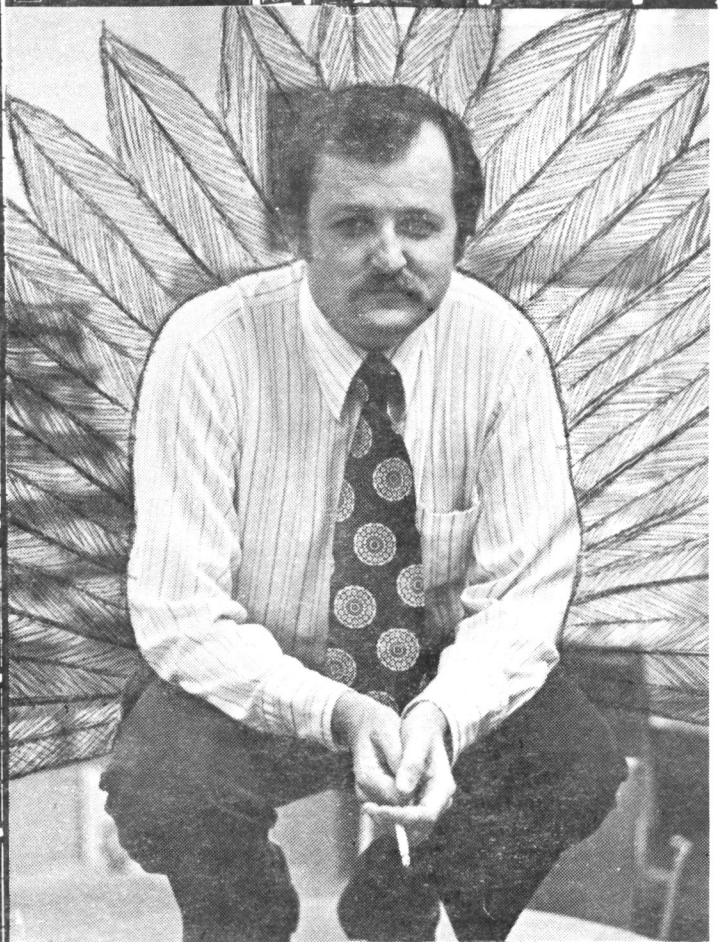

One does not have to be interested in becoming a professional race driver to benefit from a slalom, nor does one need a sports car. In fact, half of the participants in our slaloms (male and female) drive the family sedan. Any body who drives a car will benefit from participating. A slalom is essentially a driving school.

There is no set fee required to enter the slalom or any other club event. Instead, the club asks for donations to cover the costs of trophies and equipment. Usually participants contribute an average of three dollars for each car in the rally and around three dollars for each driver in a slalom. Since the donations are entirely voluntary, it is possible that someone might take advantage of the situation, but this has not happened.

At this point we do not have a location to hold the slalom. In the past, they have been held at Tara Stadium and the school. We should have a new location lined up soon. Robert Pilcher, the acting president of the club, suggested that interested students should look for posters indicating the time and place.
