SGA Being Vacated by Departing Members

Pat Patterson, SGA President, and Beverly Osborne, Vice President, will be leaving CJC at the end of this quarter.

Patterson is leaving because as he states "They're offering three courses at Mercer next quarter that I've got to have for my major. If I don't get them next quarter I have to wait two years."

Osborne is leaving because of graduation.

These actions will result in the executive branch of the Student Government being vacated. The executive branch initiates most of the action taken by the SGA.

The normal procedure for filling the vacancy of the office of SGA President is for the Vice President to succeed that office. There will, however, be no Vice President.

According to Patterson, a series of steps has been planned to overcome this difficulty.

The first step will be Patterson's resignation before the end of the quarter, resulting in the presidency being filled by Osborne for the remainder. At this time the SGA Senate will elect one of its members to the post of Vice President, as is provided in the Student Government Constitution. Osborne will then resign, leaving the office of President to whomever the senators have chosen as Vice President. The Senate will then again choose a member to serve as Vice President. These two will hold the office of President and Vice President in an interim capacity until the elections in the spring quarter are held to fill these offices.

Gary Jester, Senator from the Math-Science Division, will also be leaving at the end of this quarter if plans work out for him. Since becoming a Senator for the Student Government Association, Jester has served on the Student Affairs Committee, the General Entertainment Committee, the Lyceum/Cultural Affairs Committee, and the Intramurals Committee.

Patterson plans to go to Mercer University, Osborne to West Georgia College, and Jester is planning to go to Georgia Tech.

Of importance now is the election to be held in the Spring Quarter. The race for President will be highly contested and Patterson made mention of the fact that "There's going to be so many people running."

The reason for this enthusiasm, according to Patterson, is that "It's such a tremendously competitive office." He pointed out that the President has the power to appoint the student members of all the student-faculty committees. Although the President must have the approval of the Senate, no Senate in the past few years has failed to give confirmation of a presidential appointee.

Asked about the present set up of the SGA, Patterson remarked "There aren't any (flaws in the system), it's perfect. It's the most perfect system in the University System of Georgia. I can't conceive of a better system," said Patterson.

He did mention, though, that "the filing system is broken down. There's garbage laying around."

Aside from these minor difficulties Patterson said that at the present his "main concern is for the publicity of the elections.

I'd like to see about 1200 turnout for the election."

Although less than 350 students turned out for the last SGA election, Patterson says that the 1200 figure is "a conservative estimate."

The Senate itself will also be losing a considerable number of its members.

Patterson said that "a lot of people will be running for the senate and there will be no vacancies after the election."

In the past, candidates have been restricted in their advertising. The only place where candidates were allowed to put up posters was the window area of the Student Lounge in the bottom floor of the Library. When asked whether or not this practice would continue this spring in the elections, Patterson remarked, "That's up to the elections committee." As mentioned earlier, the SGA President has the power to appoint the student members to committees such as the elections committee.

He did say, though, that he would like to see posters of candidates in various locations across campus. "If they're in good taste."

Dean Bolander Calls for End of Senate

Dean of Students Robert Bolander startled the February 10 Student Government Association meeting with the suggestion to dissolve the SGA. The Senate was quick to pass a resolution to study his proposal with the aim of acting before this quarter's end. The general Senate reaction was favorable to the proposal.

The Senate meeting opened by discussing Senate matters when as a last order of business Vice President Osborne gave Dean Bolander the floor. He immediately called for the end of the SGA Senate and termed the college's decision to put students on administrative committees a mistake. "If they (the students) had fought for it (committee representation) they would enjoy it," he said. Bolander qualified his remarks by noting that at present student participation on committees is poor.

Few students have time beyond the class room to participate in college activities he said. "The SGA spends a lot of energy and effort in duplication. This energy should be spent on the committees; that is where the influence is."

Clarifying his position Dean Bolander suggested the SGA retain the offices of President, Vice President, Treasurer, and Secretary, but abolish the Senate. Students would be appointed to committee positions by the Student Affairs Committee.

The Senate received Bolander's proposals favorably; however Vice President Osborne dissented stating "The Senate is a mediator between faculty and students. Students can bring their complaints to the SGA."

Dean Bolander responded saying the Student Affairs Committee could handle this responsibility.

John Feathers, faculty sponsor of the SGA, voiced his agreement with the Dean. "I'm not suggesting we do away with student representation, but let us look at what is functioning and use it."

Senator Carol Reeves motioned the SGA obtain a general consensus of the student body before acting, but the motion was quickly modified to set up an ad hoc committee to study Dean Bolander's suggestions and make a report. John Rhea added a call for the Senate to act before the quarter's end. The motion was passed unanimously.

The majority of the SGA members spoke in favor of abolishing the Senate with the notable exceptions of President Pat Patterson and Vice President Beverly Osborne.

Wordmonger Walton Gets Ideas Across

The lecture of Charlie Walton on Tuesday, February 8, 1977, which was sponsored by the Lyceum turned out to be delightful and amusing. Mr. Walton is a gentleman that found his talent early in life and has successfully learned how to use it to earn an excellent living.

Walton has a B.A. Degree in Elementary Education from David Lipscomb College and a M.A. Degree in the Education of the Deaf from George Peabody College. His background is education but his talent is communication. "Getting ideas across" is the thing he does best. He claims that "not being an expert" helps his career. "Often a client of mine will know his subject too well to explain it to the uninitiated. I am in a position to ask the questions that the uninitiated would ask," stated Walton.

Mr. Walton started out his career by teaching. He stated that he "liked teaching but didn't like the kids."

For someone who professes not to like children, a great deal of his work is for and about children. One of his creations is a fictional character known as "George Library", who cleverly introduces children to card catalogs.

At the present, he is working with a project in Clayton County. This program is designed to assist handicapped children back into a normal class room setting thus easing them into the mainstream of life.

One of the more interesting areas of Walton's career is the time he and his wife spent in New Zealand. Early in their marriage the Waltons decided that they would go to New Zealand and work for the Church of Christ as missionaries. While in New Zealand, Walton was responsible for publications, advertising, organization and direction of summer camps, and an extensive program of public relations and evangelism.

Some suggestions given by Mr. Walton to the students attending the lecture were "when writing your term papers keep the professor in mind and give them a break... try not to bore them. Also understanding your audience is a critical point in putting your ideas across. Try to verbally grab someone by the shirt." He also said that "whatever you choose to do, somewhere along your career you will have to be a writer."

Tablet Successful Despite Criticism

Despite recent criticisms levied against it, the Clay Tablet, the school's literary magazine, is enjoying success among Clayton students.

According to William Daily Jr. the magazine's editor, "It's going good and people are picking it up."

Appearing in a recent issue of the Bent Tree, a review of the Clay Tablet written by D.W. Plunkett was highly critical of the current issue.

Daily reports, however, that this criticism has had little effect on the response to the magazine and that at the time of this writing he and his staff have assimilated and distributed over 500 issues, all of which have been picked up by Clayton students.

Daily announced new additions to the Clay Tablet staff: Helen McNair, Public Relations Director; Margaret Conolly, Poetry Editor; and Dan Evatt, Staff photographer.

"Someone should give us a kick."

Bent Tree An Opinion Rag ???!

Someone, I think it was Bent Tree advisor Jean Graham, was arguing with me over whether or not The Bent Tree was becoming an opinion rag. She said no; I said yes. This should convert her.

I've been trying to come up with some simple form letters to request Presidential Pardons. Here's one: Dear Mr. President, Please pardon me. At present I am serving time in a Veterans hospital for having answered the Draft. Signed . . .

Investing in the student senate may be a poor risk if Dean Bolander has his way. He wants to end the one unified body of student opinion on campus. The worst of it is the senate wants him to do it also. Maybe it's rubber stamp syndrome.

Black History Week just passed with nary a peck of the typewriter from the school newspaper. Personally I'm ashamed we failed to get any coverage, but I also think it's important to note I can not remember any black reporter on the staff during the last four quarters. I don't think we need a black reporter to cover events such as Black History Week, but we do need somebody to kick us when we forget to cover all college activities.

You know it's rumor or I wouldn't be spreading it. I've caught wind of a plan to change the role of faculty advisors to the Clay Tablet and The Bent Tree making them instructors. If you think the publications are censored now, wait till instructors start grading them before you read them.

I once said I wouldn't put an opinion in the Tree until I had a good one, and until I get one you're just going to have to read the facts. Now, anyone for politics?

"HORRID" - A key character in the March 9-12 presentation of "Camelot" at CJC will be this wooly character named "Kabooby" who will play "Horrid" in the Lerner and Lowe presentation. Currently involved in intensive training with CJC choir Director Dr. Larry Corse and his wife, Sandra, Horrid, or Kabooby, is owned by Tanya Peacock of Morrow.

Camelot Tickets Available

Reserved seat tickets for "Camelot", a four-night presentation scheduled at CJC March 9-12, are available. To be given by the CJC Choir and Orchestra, all performances of the Lerner and Lowe presentation will be free and open to the public. However, all seats will be reserved and must be obtained in advance, according to Dr. Larry Corse, Choir Director.

Performances are scheduled at 8:30 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, March 9 and 10, and beginning at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, March 11 and 12. In addition, an open dress rehearsal will be given at 12 noon on Wednesday.

Free tickets may be obtained from the secretary in the Division of Humanities between the hours of 9 a.m. and 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Friday.

All students graduating in June 1977 please check with the Bookstore to order your caps and gowns. The Bookstore will be taking orders beginning March 1, through April 1, 1977.

Lyceum Presentation

Freedom Of Expression On Trial

In search of an answer to how much freedom of expression is protected by the constitution, the Lyceum presented "Freedom of Expression on Trial", Wednesday February 9. Since no vote was taken, neither side, in what was largely a pornography trial, could claim victory.

Ken Pollock, a former Assistant Solicitor from Fulton County, prosecuted for the law saying, "It is erroneous to say the State of Georgia has gone too far to prohibit pornography." He noted, in his opening argument, the nation has never accepted total freedom of expression and further, citing examples, it is not a conservative vs. liberal issue.

In defense of more open freedom of expression Atlanta attorney Glenn Zell stated, "Placing a limit to freedom of expression is an inherently dangerous doctrine." He pointed out the play HAIR has never been produced in Georgia because of fear of prosecution and said, "It is bad to have a law which can have this kind of inroad on your freedom."

The prosecution next presented its expert witness, Director of the Emory University Center for Research in Social Change, Dr. Fred Crawford. He stated there were linkages between sex crimes and pornography and cited several examples.

The defense called Psychologist Dr. J. Frank Clark who contradicted Dr. Crawford's position. "Sex crimes are committed by deranged individuals. Sexually explicit movies do not cause sex crimes."

Prosecutor Pollock summing up his argument said the present obscenity laws are not too broad or vague. "We have a living constitution. Juries decide if material is obscene by community standards. The law therefore changes with the community."

The defense responded that there is no such thing as a common community standard. "You are dealing with people of different moral standards."

Clayton County Solicitor William E. Frey acting as judge asked each side to explain where they thought the obscenity law will go. The prosecution foresaw no significant changes in the law while the defense felt a more liberal Supreme Court will make changes during the 1980's.

The Lyceum presentation can be heard on cassette tape in the library.

PLACE: After completing a Course Schedule Form with his advisor (or self-advising) a student proceeds to the Division or Department Office where he wishes to enroll in a course (i.e. Special Studies, G-216; Health Sciences, C-33; Humanities, G-205; Natural Sciences & Mathematics, C-33; Business, C-15 and Social Sciences, G-110A). A course card is obtained for each course for which a student wishes to register. The student takes these course cards to the Office of the Registrar where registration materials and course cards are merged. Course cards issued on February 28 and March 1 are valid for Early Registration only. Having turned all cards in to the Registrar's Office, the student may pay his fees at the Business Office or may delay payment as outlined below.

Fees are payable as follows:

- (1) Payable on Early Registration days (February 28 and March 1).
- (2) Payable in the Business Office on or before March 15. (Business Office hours: 8 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.)
- (3) Payable by check or money order at the Reception Desk, Administration Building on or before March 15 (5 p.m. - 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday).

For students wishing to pay by mail, a check or money order must be received in the Business Office no later than March 15. Validated ID cards may be obtained at the Reception Desk, Administration Building, beginning March 25, 1977.

ID and Fee cards must accompany fee payments.

If you fail to complete the registration process by March 15, you may enroll in courses for the Spring Quarter by registering on March 29 (after regular registration) in the Office of the Registrar (11 a.m.- 2 p.m. or 5:30 p.m.- 8:30 p.m.). Failure to pay fees by March 15 is failure to complete the registration process; the master cards and course cards used at Early Registration are not valid after March 15.
REMINDER: Turn course cards in February 28 or March 1.

CJC Class Visits Neely Reactor

The Neely Nuclear Research Center on the campus of the Georgia Institute of Technology was visited by Dr. Miriam Perry's Environmental Science class last month. The class is studying about Nuclear energy and the visit coincided with the recent fuel-shortage scare. With the possibility of Nuclear power being our main source of energy for the immediate future, interest among students was very high. Mr. Bob Kirkland, who is the Research Reactor Supervisor, guided the tour and answered the students' questions.

The major use of reactors is the production of power. Heat produced in the fission process may be used just as is heat obtained by burning coal or oil to convert water to steam, which is in turn used to generate electricity. In the Georgia Tech reactor no use will be made of the heat produced. The Tech reactor is used mostly for training purposes. Much of the staff that mans the Nuclear Power Plant in Baxley, Ga. was trained on the Tech Reactor. Students at the Institute also utilize the facility for training purposes.

In answer to the question whether or not the reactor could blow up like an atomic bomb, Mr. Kirkland said that the Reactor was designed taking into consideration the most "catastrophic" of events. He went on to explain that the type of fuel and principles of design of a reactor are quite different from those of a bomb and that the Tech reactor is in no way capable of an atomic explosion.

The money to operate the reactor is government-funded and thereby it is owned by the tax-payers. It is not a 'secret place' and any groups or individuals that might have need of the services of the reactor can utilize it by going through the proper channels.

Mr. Bob Boyd, in charge of monitoring radioactivity safety, gave a brief 'off-the cuff' outline of how the monitoring is done. He showed several technological devices that are used to check the air around the plant itself and in strategic locations surrounding the Atlanta area. These instruments determine whether or not radioactivity in a person or in the environment exceeds the safety limits. The only people really in danger of over-exposure are the actual operators of the reactor and they are carefully monitored.

Dr. Robert Moore of the Environmental Protection Agency further explained his purpose with the Nuclear Research Center. He analyses all parts of the environment to determine what elements are present and measures them. He stated, "There is a lot of ambiguity in many of the reports circulating on just what is considered toxic and what isn't in the atmosphere, and this should be taken into consideration when reading anything published on the subject."

The current operating cost of the Neely Reactor is in the area of a quarter of a million dollars, most of that cost being in personnel. The center was initially financed by the State of Georgia, The National Science Foundation, and the Atomic Energy Commission at a total cost of $4.5 million dollars.

Anyone interested in touring the Tech Reactor should call 894-3600.

Dr. Patrick Collins

Dr. Patrick Collins, English professor at CJC is a very unusual man, as anyone who has attended his class will attest. Not only is his teaching style unique, his personality is also unique.

How often does a man marry a woman with six young children? Dr. Collins did just that. Six months after his marriage, he and his wife adopted a battered child as well.

Elouise, his wife, is an extraordinary woman. She holds a Ph.D. and is director of STRETCH, a program for Training Regular Educators to Teach Children With Handicaps.

Dr. Collins has been at CJC for three years. He spent an entire summer on I-75 moving from Ohio to Walden III, a beautiful old home he and his wife had restored in Pike County. One month after moving the last load of furniture from Ohio, Walden III burned to the ground, destroying everything they owned. Among their losses was his collection of 3,000 books and records and all the poetry and writings he had done over the years. With typical wit he says that this was the only time he ever cried in the classroom.

Spotlight on

They rebuilt their home on the six acres of land where they garden and raise a menagerie of animals including five horses and a pen full of chickens. Dr. Collins can sometimes be seen riding around with his four huge dogs, all gifts from students, in a small Toyota Corolla.

His love for literature is apparent in his teaching but he says he is more 'person' oriented than he used to be. His students feel free to go to him any time for help, in their personal lives as well as in their scholastic work. He has affectionately been called the "Silver Fox" by them. He never has a dull class because of his fantastic sense of humor. His philosophy of life is "We all take ourselves too seriously and our lives not seriously enough".

Dr. Collins graduated from Stonehill College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1953. In 1959 he received his Masters from Fordham University and his doctorate at Bowling Green State University in 1973.

Tortoise Ties Hare at Auto Club Rallye

The CJC Auto Club held its first rallye of the Spring season on Sunday, February 13th. The rallyists had to follow a series of 59 directions that had them crisscrossing Clayton, Henry and Fayette counties for an hour and a half. The result was a classis contest between the tortoise and the hare. The tortoise was a lumbering old 68 VW van manned by Russ Key and David Morgan, the club's faculty advisor. The hare was a tiny and quick Triumph Spitfire piloted by Mark Lunsford and Jay Pfeiffer.

The Spitfire jumped off to a quick advantage only to miss a turn. The VW Van plodding steadily along took the lead. The hare recovered and passed the tortoise but soon it had to stop for brake fluid. The tortoise was back in the lead. With brakes working again, the Spitfire rejoined the pursuit, finally catching the VW Van shortly before the finish.

However, Rallymaster Jim Gray declared the race a tie. He said the hare had a quicker time but the tortoise has more accurate elapsed mileage.

Others participating in the rallye were Ed Pritchard and Ed Burcher in a superfast dunebuggy. They were so fast they ran off course and ended up in Peachtree City before finding their way back to the finish.

Starting second in a Pinto were Wanda and Wayne Smith. They got lost before the first checkpoint but with help from their CB radio made it to the post rally party.

Then there was the purple TR6 of Mark Berrie and Katherine Gray. They haven't been heard from since they were last seen heading the wrong way down a dirt road near Southlake Mall.

Finally, Kathy Lunsford and John Boromolini were in contention in their Camaro until they drove past the last checkpoint without stopping.

To Mark and Katherine, wherever you are; our next rally will be Sunday, February 27th at 1:30 p.m. in the Administration Building parking lot.

An auto rallye is something like a treasure hunt. No special skills are needed. One person drives while the other reads the directions. The objective is to get from the start to the finish without making any mistakes. Penalty points are assessed for driving too quickly or too slowly or for driving too far or not far enough. For more details on auto rallying, stop by the Counseling Center, C-61, and talk with David Morgan.

Album Reviews

"Rumors" Spread by Fleetwood Mac

(Fleetwood Mac ---- Rumors ----) If you were turned on by previous Fleetwood Mac music -- you'll love this one. It is hot off the press and it's a KILLER. Fleetwood Mac has an abundance of talent; especially in the writing and singing departments -- in fact, they almost have too much talent for one group. I think that at least three members of the group could make it on their own.

Now; back to the album. The lead vocal duties were divided fairly equally, but I think people would like to hear more of Stevie Nicks. Most of the melodies and song topics pattern their previous album, but don't get me wrong, all of the material on Rumors is quality material. Mac pride themselves in producing quality albums; this is the first album they've made in almost a year (some were wondering if there was ever going to be another one). The song entitled "You Can Go Your Own Way" has been released as a single, and it is the highlight of the album. Rumors is worthy of your ears.

Harvill Reports Light Turnout

Dr. Avery Harvill, Director of Physical Education and intramurals, is somewhat disappointed with the turnout for the Winter Intramurals. The turnout has been light, and he attributed the light turnout to the inclement weather and the fact that many people work in the afternoons. (see results of winter intramurals above.) He is optimistic about the upcoming Spring Intramurals (see sign-up dates below.) He feels there will be a good turnout this spring; he hopes that with the coming of warm weather people will be ready to get outside and participate in physical activities.

Dr. Harvill encourages men and women to come out and participate in intramurals. "We like to have separate men's and women's teams, but we've been unable to do that because so few girls come out. This winter we had a couple of girls who played on the men's basketball teams." He expressed some concern about the fact that very few women take part in any type of athletic or fitness programs. He described the majority of girls at CJC to be "physically weak"; "we've had some girls who couldn't properly control a tennis racket." He also seems to think that both men and women fail to recognize their bodily needs with respect to physical fitness and a good diet.

Dr. Harvill also commented on future plans for the physical education department at CJC. He informed us that plans had been drawn for a gymnasium and dance studio; but because of a decision to build a new library; the plans for the expansion of physical education facilities have been delayed indefinitely. It seems as though a new library has been deemed more important than new physical education facilities. He also speculated on the prospect of intercollegiate sports teams at CJC; saying flatly "we're not ready for intercollegiate sports teams, if we did start an intercollegiate program, we would almost have to double the student activities fee".

PETERSON'S PALATE

Recipes In The Making

Last issue I invited the students and faculty to send in their favorite recipes. The response thus far has given me six recipes for this issue. I'm hoping for as great response for the next issue also. If all goes according to plan, I'll be starting a new column that will print the recipes I receive during the week separate from Peterson's Palate.

Starting next issue, in Peterson's Palate I'll be reviewing one particular restaurant rather than collectively as I've done in the past. I hope you'll be patient with me as I try to be as objective as I can. This is something very new to me and with time I hope I'll be able to write the reviews with more ease and confidence. See you next week.

Movie Review

"Rocky" Offers Encouragement

I'm always skeptical when I go see a movie that has consistently received fantastic reviews. How could any movie be so great that everyone likes it? With "Rocky", all those fantastic reviews are true.

Sylvester Stallone stars as Rocky Balboa, the unknown fighter who is given the chance to prove himself. Rocky possesses a "down-home" street philosophy and he combines "macho" with tenderness. Talia Shire gives a great and realistic performance as Rocky's girlfriend who blossoms from shyness into confidence and beauty.

"Rocky" is a positive movie in an era which is saturated with pessimism. It makes the movie goer feel good. It uplifts the spirit and offers encouragement for tomorrow. Without a doubt, it is one of the best movies that I've seen in a long time.

WHAT DO YOU SAY ??...

Do you often say things that do not really reflect your true feelings? It seems that sometimes people are unable to come right out and say what they are really thinking. We've compiled a few of the most popular things people say when evading their feelings:

WHAT WE SAY

Hello. It's been at least two years since I've seen you.

I just came in here to have one drink.

I really shouldn't.

I have to work late tonight.

I hope you don't mind

I'll get back to ya later.

I guess I'll talk to you later.

Sure, I'll help you with your problem.

Let's get together sometime soon.

I've got to stay home and study.

You can always trust me.

WHAT WE MEAN

I can't remember your name.

I'm depressed and I plan to get smashed.

I'm going to anyway.

I'm going out with my secretary.

I know this really makes you mad, but that's tough.
Good-bye forever.

You're boring me.

Why don't you go see a psychologist.

I couldn't care less if I ever see you again.

I've got other plans.

You'd better not trust me.

Hi! Are you somewhat confused about what you want to do with your life, and not really sure what type of occupation you'd like to pursue? This test may hold the answer. I found that I was a natural for a librarian position in the CJC Library. If you want to find out what you really ought to be doing, forge ahead.

- Where would you be most comfortable:
 - Waiting in line to get into a bathroom
 - A nudist colony in Alaska
 - Talking to a person with bad breath
 - Sitting in the desks in CJC classrooms (folding top variety)
- What would you most like to do:
 - Go to a Lyceum presentation
 - Attend a piano recital
 - Attend an English 111 or 112 class
 - Attend a funeral
- Would you rather be ripped off by:
 - Your best friend
 - Someone you didn't know
 - A door to door salesman
 - The CJC bookstore
- Would you rather:
 - Go five minutes extra in class
 - Give up spring break
 - Bribe your professor, and forget the whole thing
 - Just call off winter quarter and receive a free meal in the CJC cafeteria as a refund for your tuition fee.
- Would you rather read:
 - The Wall Street Journal
 - The Atlanta Journal
 - The Bent Tree
 - Writing on bathroom walls (try D-100)

Clayton Offers Aviation Degree

Unlike many junior colleges in Georgia, Clayton Junior offers an Associate of Science Degree in Aviation Administration. In cooperation with Georgia State University, CJC offers this career program designed to provide college-level training in general education and professional aviation management.

Aviation employment is available not only in the airline industry, but also in the areas of business and corporate flying, personal flying, flight instruction, and numerous military and government positions. Having experienced training in professional courses, graduates of the CJC program may work in various capacities for commercial airlines, aircraft manufacturers, private corporations, fixed base operations, government agencies, and research and development firms.

Present aviation employees and students wishing to transfer into the program are encouraged to consult the registrar's office on credit transferability of any prior college work. A person wishing to work toward the degree must meet the criteria established by CJC and Georgia State University.

The major field professional courses are offered only through Georgia State; however, one nice feature of the program is that many of these courses are offered on site at CJC.

G.S. Kordecki is the faculty advisor for the program and has descriptive literature available for interested students. For details call 363-7763 or stop by the Division of Business at C11N.

- While in class at CJC, do you:
 - Laugh at your instructors corny jokes
 - Doodle
 - Collect phone numbers
 - Take No-Doz

Take Time To Care

Recently, I saw singer Lyn Kellogg perform. In her performance she sang a song about a girl who was looking for a "superman" that would take care of her. The song was not as interesting as Kellogg's introduction of the song. It was an extremely negative introduction; she put down the character in the song and also herself when she acted like the character in the song.

This says something important about the society in which we live. In so many of today's songs, books, and movies, negative emphasis is placed on people's dependence on each other. If we depend on someone, we are automatically labeled as "weak"; if we are female, we are labeled as "unliberated" as well. In today's world we must be "strong", "self-reliant", and "independent".

How far we've come since Barbra Streisand sang that "people who need people are the luckiest people in the world"! I'm not sure that the distance has been progress, either. Don't get me wrong, I'm not knocking "strong", "self-reliant", or "independent"; I'm knocking the way we define those words. Today "strong" has become not crying when you're overwhelmed by the beauty of a sunset or not saying "I love you". "Self-reliant" now means doing it all on your own. An "independent" attitude not only means that you're not dominated but that you don't care what anybody else thinks or does.

It seems that we've created a society in which we don't have time for other people. I'm guilty of it, too. If I had a dollar for every time I've told a member of my family or a friend to go away because I'm busy, I'd be a rich lady. Not only do we not have time for others, but we don't have time for ourselves, either. We're so wrapped up in maintaining a façade of "strength" and "independence" that we aren't able to say "I need you". We've become so involved in an impersonal age that we forget that we're all people; we all have feelings and needs; we all have hopes and dreams.

I'd like to propose some new definitions for those three words. Perhaps "strong" should mean being brave enough to care and making yourself vulnerable. Perhaps "self-reliant" should include relying on your own initiative in seeking aid when you really need it. As for "independence", how about being yourself, not a carbon copy of everyone else? Like the song says, "people who need people are the luckiest people in the world"; why? Because they're alive enough to care and to reach out and be vulnerable. If we're "strong" enough to face the world without our masks, "self-reliant" enough to seek out other people, and "independent" enough to be "real", then maybe we'll be among those lucky people who need people.

All Ages Can Do It

Although breast cancer is usually found in women of middle age and over, the American Cancer Society urges all women from high school age on to practice breast self-examination.

The breast cancer death toll is high—an estimated 33,000 annually says the American Cancer Society. But it could change for the better if more women regularly practiced breast self-examination and consulted their doctors if they noticed any change.

A Monthly Date

Mark it on your calendar. Once a month—every month. BSE. Breast self-examination.

Life-saving protection against one of woman's deadliest enemies—breast cancer.

95% of breast cancers are discovered by women themselves. And the earlier the detection and treatment, the greater the chances of cure.

Ask your local Unit for our leaflet on breast self-examination. Then mark your calendar—BSE. Every month.

American Cancer Society

New Techniques

Besides breast self-examination, several new methods such as mammography (x-rays) and thermography (heat patterns) help detect breast cancer. Early detection means a greater chance for life says the American Cancer Society. Ask your doctor or local hospital clinic about these tests.

Regents Act On GIs, Old

ATLANTA - The University System of Georgia Board of Regents has acted to exempt military personnel and dependents from non-resident tuition and to allow residents 62 and over to attend credit courses free if space is available.

Acting at their January meeting, the Regents made the military non-resident tuition exemption effective Summer Quarter. Currently, the military must pay the higher non-resident tuition if they are not residents.

The Board voted to ask the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to discuss accreditation of courses at the point they are given, rather than at the location of the college itself. The Regents said they were concerned about the quality of some courses given at military bases in Georgia by colleges from as far away as California, Utah and Colorado.

The Regents made the rules effective for Fall Quarter 1977 for residents 62 and over to attend credit courses free if space is available. Georgia voters approved in November a constitutional amendment giving the elderly this privilege.

The Board adopted a policy forbidding employees from holding political office at the state or federal level and forbidding political activity during working hours.

The Regents voted to make no changes at this time in a requirement that all seniors, before graduating, must take an examination in the field in which they majored. They do not have to pay for or pass the examination and the score is not recorded on their transcripts.

Approved was an administrative reorganization plan for the University of Georgia which combines the office of provost into the office of Vice President for Academic Affairs, as recommended by President Fred Davison.

Regent Charles Oxford of Albany, Board vice chairman, was elected chairman to replace Dr. John Bell of Dublin whose term as Regent expired Jan. 1. Regent Milton Jones of Columbus was elected vice chairman.

Dr. Neila A. Poshek, Dean of the College of Nursing at Tulsa University, was appointed Dean of the School of Nursing at the Medical College of Georgia. Dr. John David Burke was appointed assistant vice president for services at the University of Georgia, Dr. Leo Parrish Jr. as head of the department of management at Georgia Southern, Dr. Terry Kammash as Fuller E. Callaway Professor of Nuclear Engineering at Georgia Tech, and Dr. Irwin Perlin as professor emeritus at Georgia Tech.

The Board voted to purchase a private dormitory complex and 27 acres from Holiday Inn, Inc. for $350,000 and to spend another $280,000 in renovating and equipping it for Georgia Southern College, which is adjacent to the property.

The Regents voted to hold a retreat-type meeting at the System facilities on Skidaway Island near Savannah May 27-29. In-depth discussions, not possible at regular meetings because of time limitations, will be held at the retreat.
