"The Bard In Atlanta" Is Next On Lyceum Schedule

The Atlanta Shakespeare Company, will present "The Bard in Atlanta: Shakespeare For the People" on Thursday, May 2. This lecture performance will begin at 12:05 p.m. and will take place in G-132.

The Company, founded in 1979, has performed in various spaces around

Atlanta, most notably and recently at Manuel's Tavern. Earlier this year the Company moved into its own 165-seat tavern theatre at 499 Peachtree Street, a converted warehouse. The Company's goal "...is to create a first rate classical repertory company in Atlanta," according to Jeffrey Watkins, President and Artistic Director. Over the years the Company has presented Twelfth Night, Two Gentlemen of Verona, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Romeo and Juliet and other works.

Mr. Watkins, a graduate of Trinity University with majors in drama and photography, joined the Atlanta Shakespeare Company in 1984, after several years as an actor, director, set designer, mime, juggler, magician, jazz dancer and singer. During that first year he approached Manuel Maloof, Chairman of the DeKalb County Commission and owner of Manuel's Tavern, about performing As You Like It in the popular bar's back room. Watkins thought, "...the atmosphere of a bar might evoke that rowdiness of the Globe Theater, where many of Shakespeare's plays were first performed," according to an article in The Wall Street Journal.

In addition to the full-length productions, the company presents 20-minute versions of the Bard's works, written and directed by Clark Orwick, a member of the Company. The basic premise is "...as if a scuzzy troupe of Elizabethan actors wandering the backroads of sixteenth-century England had attempted to put on a Shakespeare play relying on the impaired memory of one of its members who know someone who had once seen the play at the Globe." The result is an (See Shakespeare on page 3)

Clayton Student Dances Her Way Through School

Clayton State College was well represented in the recent production of "Snow White" at the Clayton County Performing Arts Center. One of the lead characters was played by Mitsie Hilburn, a freshman from Riverdale.

Hilburn not only played the role of "Bluebird," but also co-directed and choreographed the "Broadway Review" which was performed by "Souls of the Feet" following the "Snow White" production. She was joined in the performances by fellow CSC students Angela Brown, Melissa Brown, and Pam Duffy.

Dance is a big part of Hilburn's life. She started dancing at age seven and became hooked when she saw her first Broadway show at 10. Dance is Hilburn's passion and it is a labor of love. "I dance because I love it, not because of money," said Hilburn. "The whole experience has been great."

Currently enrolled in 12 credit hours at Clayton State, Hilburn spends 16 hours a week teaching dance to Clayton County youngsters. Most of her free time is spent perfecting her skills.

Hilburn plans to earn an undergraduate degree in dance composition and choreography. She plans to transfer from CSC to complete her degree. She has been accepted at Southern Methodist University (SMU), which has a renowned dance school, and hopes to transfer next year.

The Clayton County native has a long list of credits and accomplishments in dance. Before her senior year at Riverdale High School, Hilburn auditioned and was accepted to Northside High School of the Performing Arts. Before graduating, she toured Europe as a member of Northside's prestigious touring company. She has appeared in numerous performances, festivals, trade and industrial shows and exhibitions.

Hilburn is active in developing dance in Clayton County through teaching and performing. "There are a lot of opportunities for dancers in the area," said Hilburn. "I encourage dancers starting out to go to every audition they can for the experience and the exposure."

"Challenge of The '90's":

A Joint Lecture on American Industry In Conflict

by Sean Deal
Vice President of APICS
Student Freelance Submission

American Industry is engaged in a two-front conflict. One front is against foreign competition and the second against embedded inefficient operations. The very standard of living for this generation, as well as subsequent generations, will be affected by the outcome of this conflict. The current talk on the home-front is that this generation, the 14- to 28-year olds, might become the first generation with a standard of living lower than their parents.

The "How's" and "Why's" behind the reasons that American Industry has lost its competitive advantage are important to know and understand. More importantly, "What's" American Industry doing to fight back and "Who's" doing it should be the concern of today's business graduates. Although civilians now, college students will soon become soldiers in the field of business. The weapons at your disposal will include: technical skill, judgment, knowledge, and character.

The American Production and Inventory Control Society (APICS) and the Accounting Club are joining forces to introduce students to some of the techniques and methods of efficiency improvement and cost-control presently available in the American Industry arsenal.

On May 9, 1991, Mr. David Peterson and Mr. Matt Carder will lecture on the importance of efficiency and quality in industry and how costs can be better controlled and reported. Mr. Peterson is a consultant from the "Big 6" accounting firm of Ernst and Young. Mr. Carder is with Zep Manufacturing and the current president of the Southside American Production and Inventory Control Society chapter.

This is the largest event ever sponsored by the two School of Business clubs. The lecture and adjoining activities were arranged by the student members of both the APICS and Accounting Club with their fellow students in mind. The joint lecture will take place in D-223 at 10:00 a.m. and will last approximately one and one half hours. Refreshments will be served so come by and stay for an informative, entertaining, and enlightening lecture.

Remember, "The right information at the right time is nine-tenths of any battle" (Napoleon).

Special thanks is owed the following students for their hard work and commitment in arranging this joint lecture: Anita Chandler, Mary Coll, Jeannie Alderman, and special thanks to Steve Rigdon. In addition, we thank all faculty members involved for their guidance and cooperation.

Environmental Awareness Club Is On The Move

Several Activities Are Already Scheduled

by Adrienne Elder
Environmental Awareness
Club Member
Student Freelance Submission

The newly-reorganized Environmental Awareness Club is jumping into numerous programs and activities concerning environmental issues of today. There is no time to waste when the preservation of our earth is at stake.

Spring quarter activities began with Earth Day on April 22. Reynold's Preservation Center supplied us with an enlightening display which was set up in the lobby of the C-building. Greenpeace is going to provide a similar display on Thursday, May 2, for anyone who may have missed the Reynold's exhibition. This will also be easily accessible in the C-building lobby.

On May 28, EAC has organized a field trip to Sweetwater Creek Conservation Park. The outing will consist of a one-hour nature hike with Jana Bailey, the Park Naturalist, as our guide and liaison. We welcome anyone to join us for a springtime walk and an opportunity to view nature at its best on that Saturday morning. Please contact Patricia Armstrong (961-3510) for the time and location of our departure.

EAC's success depends on the active participation and concern of the entire student and faculty bodies. The only requirement for membership is simply a concern for our earth's preservation. Anyone interested in becoming an EAC member may contact Patricia Armstrong in the Student Services suite (D-217) or join us at our regularly scheduled meetings on the first Monday of each month in the private dining room (D-118) of the Student Center. We need and welcome your involvement.

The newest, The Really Bad Luck and Rotten Timing of Romeo and Juliet, will be performed as a part of this Lyceum presentation. The production will be preceded by comments from Mr. Watkins.

Compeer Atlanta Seeks Volunteers

How important is a friend? For an isolated elderly person, a homeless individual, or someone suffering from mental illness, a friend can be very important. For these populations, friends can provide the support and encouragement that could mean the difference between independent living and homelessness or institutionalization.

"Compeer Atlanta" specializes in friendship. Compeer (meaning companion, peer, or equal) is a program of the Metropolitan Atlanta Deinstitutionalization Task Force, Inc. The Task Force's ultimate goal is to make community care a positive reality for deinstitutionalized mentally ill, developmentally disabled adults, homeless, and elderly people who are at risk for institutionalization because of a shortage of community resources.

Since 1986, Compeer Atlanta has been utilizing well-trained volunteers who are screened and "matched" as friends with individuals referred to Compeer by community mental health agencies, social workers, clergy, or physicians. Compeer volunteers provide emotional support as well as assisting their friends with basic skills, such as staying linked with community resources that provide for their basic needs, gaining access to recreational and social opportunities, and mastering everyday living skills.

Compeer volunteers receive 10 hours of initial screening and training in preparation for participation in the program and attend monthly support meetings with Compeer staff. Volunteers commit to spend one hour a week for a year with their friends.

If you are interested in volunteering for Compeer, please give them a call at 894-8667 or write them at P.O. Box 1104, Decatur, GA 30031.

CSC Holds Women's Basketball Tryouts

Lynn Jarrett, newly-named women's basketball coach at Clayton State College, has begun her search for players to field the inaugural Lady Lakers basketball squad.

"We are looking for talented young women who are interested in attending a college where they will receive a quality education and also have the opportunity to participate in an athletic program dedicated to success," said Jarrett.

To be able to look at as many prospects as possible, Coach Jarrett has set two tryout sessions with the first one on Saturday, May 4 at 1:00 p.m. The second session will be Saturday, May 25 at 10:00 a.m.

Prospective players interested in attending one of the tryout sessions should contact Coach Jarrett at (404) 961-3450.

NCAA Player To Transfer To Clayton State

The Clayton State College basketball Lakers have landed a big catch during the spring signing period. Lakers Coach Mason Barfield has signed Bruce Oglesby, a 6'5" forward currently at NCAA Division I Tennessee Tech, who is transferring to CSC to be closer to his family.

"We're very fortunate to sign a player of Bruce's abilities," said Barfield. "He'll make a big difference for us in District 25."

Oglesby, from Hartwell, GA, played high school basketball at Hart County High School. He was rated among the top 100 prep prospects in the country.

He led Hart County to a school record finish of 26-2 his senior year while averaging 21.0 points per game (ppg) and 11.0 rebounds. He set a single-game school record of 42 points while finishing

This event is being coordinated by the CSC Soccer Club.

Lakers Sign Heritage High Standout

Jeff Rogers, a 6-5 forward at Heritage High School in Conyers, became the second player signed by the Clayton State College basketball Lakers during the current spring signing period.

Rogers, who plans to major in business at Clayton State, averaged 18.0 points per game and 9.0 rebounds this past season at Heritage. He was the Atlanta Tip Off Club "Player of the Month" for February and was two-time all-tourney at the annual Newton County Thanksgiving Tournament.

"I think he'll be an asset at Clayton State," said Curtis Bell, Rogers' coach at Heritage. "He's an outstanding leaper and is a good ball handler. He has a good shooting range and is capable of playing the two or three position," said Bell.

"Jeff is going to contribute to this program," said Lakers coach Mason Barfield. "He's the type of player who will fit in nicely to our scheme."

with 1,833 career points.

Oglesby garnered numerous awards and honors during his three years as a starter. He was "Northeast Georgia Player of the Year," named to the Atlanta Journal-Constitution's first team all-state, selected to the North-South All-Star team and selected to the Georgia all-star team which played against a Soviet all-star team. He was twice named team MVP and was MVP in two tournaments.

Oglesby exhibited his collegiate potential for Tennessee Tech this season by being named to the Ohio Valley Conference (OVC) All-Rookie Team. He appeared in 27 games for the Golden Eagles and started in three games.

Oglesby played an average of 19 minutes per game, averaged 11.5 ppg and 4.0 rebounds. He was the Golden Eagles leading scorer six times and leading rebounder four times. His best performances of the season were 23 points and 10 rebounds against Western Kentucky and 12 points and 7 rebounds against nationally-ranked Nebraska.

Oglesby was considered an "immediate impact player" at Tennessee Tech and in the OVC. Obviously, Barfield has the same considerations.

Coming from an NCAA Division I program to Clayton State, an NAIA member, will not hinder Oglesby's three remaining years of eligibility. According to Barfield, the rules allow Oglesby to transfer without having to sit out the entire season. Thus, Oglesby's impact could be hard felt throughout District 25.

Oglesby becomes the third player signed by Barfield during the spring signing period. He joins 6'3" guard David Viti, a transfer from Gordon College, and 6'5" forward Jeff Rogers, from Heritage High School (see related article).

Head Selected For GIAC All-Freshman Team

Carlos Head, the leading scorer during the inaugural season of the Clayton State College basketball Lakers, was named to the Georgia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (GIAC) All-Freshman Team.

Head, a 6'1" guard from Morrow, started in 22 of 27 games for the 3-24 Lakers. He averaged 17.4 points per game and pulled down an average of 4.6 rebounds per game. He also led the Lakers from 3-point range, making .397 percent (52 of 131) of his shots.

Head finished the season in NAIA District 25 among the top 10 in scoring. He was the Lakers' leading scorer in 14 of the 27 games played this past season.

"Carlos was one of the few bright spots that we had this season," said Lakers coach Mason Barfield. "We look for more good things from Carlos in the upcoming seasons."
