New Staff Takes Over SGA Office

by Jeff Bradley Staff Writer

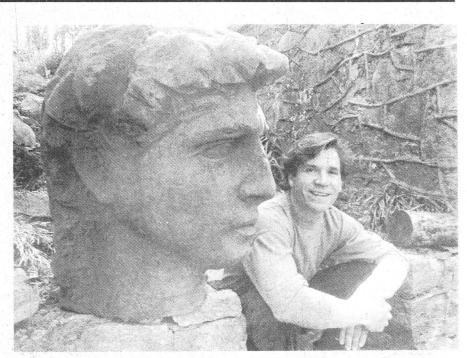

Several weeks ago, the President, Vice President and Treasurer of the CSC Student Government Association (SGA) resigned. They left their positions because they felt they could not overcome the apathy of many students.

The qualifying for the election began, and three students stepped forward to run for these offices. Kerrie Wester, who was previously the SGA secertary, was elected President. Suleman Hooda is the new Treasurer. And Brian Carter is the new Vice President. None of the three had any compition for the positions they ran for. Students were given the choice of votintg for or against each candidate. All candidates received minimum of 87%

"yes" votes. No one ran for Secretary. It is the new President's job to appoint a secretary.

The problems that faced the previous SGA administration are still present, but the new officers are optimistic. Mr. Hooda feels that the student body needs to become more aware of the SGA and the activities they sponsor. Oftentimes, students are not involved with activities because they are not aware of them.

A total of 45 people voted in the SGA election--that is slightly more than 1% of the students. Kerrie Wester urges, "Get involved." She says that the SGA can't solve problems that they don't know exist. She says she has definite plans for how to decrease student apathy and she looks forward to a much more involved student body.

Scuptor Martine Dawe, posed with an oversized bust that he sculpted, has been an artist-in-residence several times since the program began in the early 1980's.

Golf Pro Presents Sports Clinic Presentation

Mr. Charles Sorrell will present a golf clinic on "Dealing With Trouble Shots" on Thursday, May 13, 1993 at 12:05 p.m. Interested students should meet in the Physical Education Building lobby

In 1990, Mr. Sorrell was named National P.G.A. Teacher of the Year. He is the head professional at Lake Spivey Golf Club in Jonesboro and Fairfield Plantation Country Club in Carrollton.

A former P.G.A. touring professional, he was president of the Georgia P.G.A. from 1987 through 1989 and has taught at the National P.G.A. School.

Mr. Sorrell is the author of Impact...The Most Important Part of the Golf Swing, a teaching manual, and the inventor of numerous golf teaching aids. He is the owner of the Charles Sorrell Golf Teaching Center.

Dawe Returns To Campus As A "Producing" Artist-in-Residence missioned sculptor. Most of his work is Atlanta Sculptor Martin Dawe, a frequent participant in CSC's artist-in-resdience program, returns as a "producing" artist May 3-14. During his two-week residency he will create a work of art that will be added to the College's collection. He will also work with students in the art room and will lecture in selected classes.

Mr. Dawe works primarily as a com-figurative and he uses a variety of materials ranging from foam and resins to bronze. Among his clients are Disney, Universal Studios and Georgia Tech. Other commissions include carved figures for the stage set of Madonna "Blond Ambition" tour, larger-than-life size figures for a national Honda commercial and the Naismith Trophy, presented annually to the nation's top collegiate basketball player.

Smokers, Please Be Considerate of Others

by Meredith Barnhill Staff Writer

Can anyone breathe in the C-building or G-building lobbies? I find myself holding my breath from the time I open the door until I have raced into the middle of the building because I cannot breathe. What is my problem? The selfish undisciplined people who insist on smoking in these areas. I am not going to explain about how bad smoking makes you smell, how ugly it makes your teeth, or how unhealthy it is for you because I am sure you have already been told. I am going to tell you that it would be extremely considerate for you to move your smoking outside.

I do understand that there is a sandpit upstairs in the G-building (large enough to please any five year old child) that would serve its purpose just as well outside the building. If smokers would smoke outside there would be a better chance for nonsmokers, including me, to breathe oxygen. Inside, we breathe nothing but your disgusting cigarette smoke.

Nonsmokers and I have wisely chosen not to engage in your filthy habit, therefore, we should not be forced to suffer from your filthy habit. Second-hand smoke has been proven to be as dangerous, if not more dangerous, than inhaling. Therefore, if you would kindly move your smoking outside, it would be greatly appreciated. In case of rain, there is a cover between the B-building and C-building that will keep you and your cigarette dry.

Once again, smokers, it is an obligation for you not be endanger our health as nonsmokers. We, as nonsmokers, would greatly appreciate it if you would kindly move your habit to other areas outside of the buildings.

Writer Feels Smokers Also Have Rights

By Richard Davis Staff Writer

More than ever the tobacco industry has been threatened by the ongoing publicity stunts of "Non-Smoking." The increasing number of No Smoking signs seem to foreshadow the extinction of smoking in public places. This controversial issue was recently resolved in Fulton County when the Board of Commissioners passed a new law which bans all smoking in public places.

In just a few short years research has shed light on smokers to the fact that it is not just their lungs, but everyone else's around them. The question is should non-smokers influence where smokers can or can not smoke? The answer should be yes, but when the entire privilege is taken away I feel a little inconsideration is apparent.

When Clayton State student, Amy

Beebe was asked how she felt about the ban, her reply was, "It's a form of discrimination, and though my smoking may violate the non-smokers' rights, the ban violates my right to smoke."

Total elimination of smoking in enclosed areas is one solution, but proper ventilation of enclosed areas is the probable solution to what seems to be the "The Smoking Battle."

Sergeant Glenn Buchanan, with the Clayton State Department of Public Safety, when asked how he felt about the smoking laws stated, "As an individual I will abide by the rules."

Although second hand smoke seems to be a primary concern, designated areas for smoking have been provided which eliminates most "hazardous" smoke from violating the non-smokers' rights to clean air, but if health is the issue why not discuss pollution control? Now that is a thought!

Faculty Spotlight

Herr Few Wants You!

by Kelly McElfish Staff Writer

Herr Few wants you, no, not for the army, but for German 111 next fall. Mr. Lindsey Few, one of Clayton State College's newest faculty additions, began teaching German in winter quarter. German 111 had over 25 students enrolled and German 112, which is being taught this quarter, has approximately 18 students enrolled.

Herr Few, meaning Mr. Few in German, is what his student refer to him by. He got involved with Clayton State College by responding to an ad put in the paper. Although he officially retired after teaching for thirty years, he saw this to be the perfect opportunity to stay involved with the language he loves. During his thirty years in education, he also taught Spanish and acted as a school guidance counselor.

Herr Few hopes to take the German program as far as it can go. He would like to as a minor or a major. Other classes, such as advanced conversation and literature, could possibly be offered if the program should succeed. At this point, now in the introduction classes, he has hopes for his students to have enough interest in German to want to pursue it on a greater scale and to be able to use the language when traveling.

This coming quarter, Herr Few has hopes of a class similar to the one he has now, with students who are music majors and a variety of other majors who just have an interest in the language. Since German 111 is an introductory class, there is no need to have any background in the subject to begin. Once involved, students will be introduced to a variety of German music, history, and movies. If you are required to take a foreign language or just would like the experience, Herr Few would like everyone to make German one of your possible options.

Mr. Lindsey Few joined the CSC faculty last quarter to teach German, a language option that has not been available to CSC students for many years.

Second Tuesday Final Video In Millennium Series Set For May 11

The Millennium video series, which began in October, closes next week with a screening of A Poor Man Shames Us All. The video will be shown on Tuesday, May 11, at 12:05 p.m. in room D-223.

This video explores the alternative views of wealth and society that are exhibited in the lives of tribal cultures. A Poor Man Shames Us All takes viewers from a New York ad agency to the jungles of Indonesia and the plains of Kenya. Learn why Western views of wealth of economic needs have created a society of strangers in the midst of material wealth.

Third Tuesday Southern Methodist University Director of Intercultural Education To Speak On "Love And Sex"

Reverend Clarence Glover will be speaking on the topic of "Love and Sex: Can We Talk?" druing a Lyceum-sponsored presentation on Tuesday, May 18. The program will begin at 12:05 p.m. and will take place in G-132. His lecture is a part of the "Keys to a Better Nation" series proposed by the BCAA.

Rev. Glover is Director of Intercultural Education and Minority Student Affairs and an Adjunct Professor of African-American Studies at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. He is a frequent speaker at conferences, including the annual King Center Student Conference and the National Conference on Racial and Ethnic Relations in Higher Education. Rev. Glover is listed in the 1987 edition of Who's Who Among Black Americans.

VACANCIES

The Student Government Association (SGA) has a variety of vacant positions to fill. A Parliamentarian and several SGA Representative positions are currently available. In addition, there are a number of committee positions to be filled for the 1993-94 academic year. The minimum cumulative grade point average necessary for most vacant positions is 2.0. Some committee positions require a 2.5 cumulative grade point average and 30 hours of academic credit earned at Clayton State.

If you are interested in serving your fellow students, by being an active member of the SGA or by holding a committee position, contact Kerrie Wester, SGA President. Ms. Wester has a box in the Student Activites Office (Room D-217). Drop off a note, with your name and phone number, and let her know of your interest in serving.

Lecture Review

Commissioner Napper Shared His Views About "Youth At Risk"

by Kelly McElfish Staff Writer

On April 20, Dr. George Napper, Commissioner of the Georgia Department of Children and Youth Services, presented a Lyceum lecture entitled "Youth at Risk". The Department of Children and Youth Services was created on July 1, 1992, by Governor Zell Miller. Dr. Napper is best known for the 12 years he served as Chief of Police, and later, Commissioner of the Department of Public Safety for the city of Atlanta.

Dr. Napper's presentation focused on his goals for the Department and the many challenges he faces. The most alarming problem, according to Dr. Napper, is the number of children involved in the Department's programs. On any given day, he reported that the Department touches 15,000 youths. Out of that number, 3,500 are committed to the Department, which means the Department is legally responsible for them.

Among Dr. Napper's responsibilities are overseeing the 21 regional detention centers in Georgia. These are places for short stays. He is also responsible for the four youth development campuses which are equivalent to a prison. Dr. Napper stated that up until this point, these youth detention campuses have just been to "warehouse" kids. His goal is for the campuses to have structured programs so the youths can work on skills, attitudes, and ways in which they can be better ready to be placed back into society. Dr. Napper said that a major problem is the formation of gangs in the youth detention centers. The gangs are born in the institutions and then brought back into the community.

Dr. Napper also sees dysfunctional families as the root to a lot of the problems. He feels there must be immediate, hands-on after care programs. Dr. Napper also feels that if no programs are developed then the youths will just return to the streets, and then be sent back to the centers again.

Aladdin Is A Film For Young And Old Alike The movie Aladdin tells a modern-

Kiki Steen Staff Writer

On May 7, Clayton State College will be screening Aladdin. The movie is animated and rated G, so there will not be a separate "kiddie film" shown. The movie will be shown at 1:40, 8:30, and 10:15 p.m. in G-132. There will be a 7:30 p.m. screening in the dining hall following the 6:30 p.m. Family Night Dinner.

Walt Disney Studios, which produced the recent hit Beauty and the Beast (the first animated film to be nominated for the Academy Award for best motion picture), has brought yet another classic fairy tale to the silver screen. Actor and comedian Robin Williams is the voice of the Genie (who apparently doesn't have any other name) in this animated family film.

The movie Aladdin tells a modernized version of the classic Arabian story of a young "street rat" whose life is forever changed when he acquires a magic lamp which houses a powerful genie capable of fulfilling any three wishes. The story's hero, Aladdin, is a fast-talking con-artist who, unlike the usual Disney fare of knight-in-shining-armor types, must use his quick wit and athletic skills to either outtalk or, often, outrun his antagonists.

Over-all this is a very entertaining movie. My only real complaint is with the made to order happy ending which seems to have been thrown together just for the sake of having a happy ending and is a bit anticlimactic, compared to the rest of the film. Aside from this, Aladdin is a film which should captivate children and adult audiences alike.

Clayton State Theater Performances Draw Two Full House Audiences

by Lori Cohen Editor

This is a review of the "astonishing theatrical event" that took place on April 16 and 17. I was enlightened, to the height of pleasure, at the final performance.

If you do not know what theatrical event I am speaking of, I will shed some light, on you "unenlightened" people, about the wonderful world of The Face on the Barroom Floor. Although I am not a professional theatrical critic, I do know what I like and enjoy. I feel that this performance was funny, bold, involved, crisp, and enjoyable beyond belief.

The cast was made up of some veterans of Clayton State Theater and also some newcomers. Dwain Eidson was featured as Chick Dogtemper, a drunkard. He also served as the master of ceremonies for both evenings. He performed in such a genteel way, (NOT) you did not know what was coming next. Another old-timer to the stage is Holly Hammock, who played Sweet Madelaine Mockingbird. Holly's real voice is enchanting, unlike Madelaine who sounded like someone stepped on a duck.

Then we have the hero and the villain played by Tim Mullen and Patrick Butler, respectively. These two are very talented actors, as evidenced by the way they always remembered their lines, even when the audience got involved in the production by cheering on the hero and booing or hissing at the villain. The audience involvement was not an accident. The master of ceremonies encouraged it at the beginning of the play.

Tim Mullen portrayed Jack "Toulouse" (pronounced too loose) Goodhart who told the story of his heartwretching (I mean wrenching) story about the "triumph of true love." Patrick Butler performed stellarly as Roderick Rodent, (yes, Rodent as in rat) a "definite sleazebag." The rest of the cast and crew of this show were wonderful in their own right. Gina Diamon as Annie Quackenbush and Polly Langford as Bella Yukon were terrific.

This group of young, eager players, I feel, could have big things coming at them, and should be applauded for their hard work and dedication to their art. Anyone who misses another one of this group's performances should be shot (No, not you Dwain).

This was an enjoyable and fun way to spend a Saturday evening. Hopefully Clayton State Theater will choose another "dinner theater" to put on for next year.

After speaking to Dr. Larry Corse, the director of this production, I also feel that a big "thank you" is needed for this man for all of his hard work and dedication

Take Yourself Out To A Ballgame

by Josh Pearson Staff Writer

Baseball, just the sound of the word is like a country song to my ears. Imagine yourself at a baseball game. The temperature is a comfortable 70 degrees and the sun is slowly setting. The crowd is so big that it could populate a small town. You are there with your best buddies with a hot dog in one had and a beverage of choice in the other and a bag of sunflower seeds in your pocket for later. The home team takes the field and the game is under way. At this point, you look at your companions and say, "Fellows, it doesn't get any better than this."

Since we are on the subject of baseball I feel obliged to tell you about the first Braves game that I went to this season. A good friend of mine called me around lunchtime on this particular Saturday and asked me what I was doing. "I'm mowing the grass," I replied. He then asked me what I was doing later on. "Nothing in particular," I answered. He then explained that some mutual friends of ours had extra tickets to that night's Braves game against the Dodgers and they wanted to know if we wanted to go. What a stupid question that was to ask me. "Do fish swim in the ocean?", was my answer.

The seats we had were 19 rows behind home plate. I could clearly see Ted Turner and Jane Fonda sitting in their special box down to the right of where I was. They were not the only celebrities I was going to see that night, though. A little after the game started a woman stopped to talk to a couple seated in front of us. After a few minutes the woman continued down the row to her seat. One of the people that I was with then said matter-of-factly, "That was Halle Berry." If you do not know, Halle Berry is the wife of Braves outfielder Dave Justice and has starred in the film Boomerang and the television mini-series Queen. This alleged Halle Berry evidently was friends with the people that sat right in front of us because she came back up the row and sat in an empty seat next to them and began talking. Yep, it was Halle Berry all right. She wore a hat and very casual clothes, which was somewhat of a disguise, and had it not been for my friend, I would probably never have noticed her.

After a while, Ms. Berry went back to her seat. The game continued until we reached the seventh inning stretch. As I was, stretching, I looked around and about ten rows up stood Spike Lee, the director of such movies as MalcolmX and Do The Right Thing. He was dressed the way you always see him on television. I pointed him out to my friends and we began to wonder if there were any more celebrities in the crowd. Maybe Eddie Murphy was there. Maybe Hammer was there somewhere. I personally hoped to see Cindy Crawford or maybe even Garth Brooks.

There are several morals to this story. The first one is always have a pen with you for autographs at the ballgame because you never know who you might run into. The second one is that it is good to have friends that know people who can get you good seats at the Braves game. Last, take yourself out to a baseball game, you will love it.
