SGA Fall Bash Will Be A Costume Ball

by Brad Fairchild
Staff Writer

Although this year's Fall Bash is still largely in the planning stages, the major details have already been decided upon by the Student Government Association, the event's sponsor. "It's not so much a Halloween party as it is a costume ball," says Mr. Brian Carter, SGA Vice President. Ms. Kerrie Wester, SGA President, adds that while she does encourage people to wear costumes to the dance, they are by no means required to do so and are still very welcome to attend.

She makes it clear, however, that prizes will be given to those creative or brave enough to show up in some sort of masquerade. Prizes include gift certificates from the campus bookstore. They will be awarded to individuals as well as to the couple with the best costumes. Also, a pizza party will be the prize for the club or campus organization that has the most members in attendance.

The dance itself will include music, supplied by a deejay, with free drinks and finger foods available throughout the event. The Fall Bash will be held on Friday, October 15 from 8:00 p.m. until midnight in the Continuing Education Atrium and no tickets will be required for entrance. A validated student ID card will admit you and a guest that evening. The planned free-of-charge child care service does not appear to be a reality due to a lack of volunteer staffing. Mr. Carter emphasized that volunteers are needed for this and that helping out "would be a good opportunity for education students." If you are interested in helping in this capacity, please contact any SGA officer today.

With over two hundred people in attendance, last year's Fall Bash was considered by many to have been a large success, albeit a somewhat different theme - casino night. Ms. Wester says that this year's decision not to go with a casino/gambling theme doesn't mean they are killing the idea, but rather are postponing it until later in the year, probably during LakerFest. Mr. Robert Bolander, Dean of Students, asked that this year's first big event have more of a mixer-type atmosphere in which new students would have a chance to meet each other. "He's not against the idea of a casino night, but feels that it's not the best situation for people to get to know each other," Ms. Wester says. She and Mr. Carter are hoping for a large turnout to this year's Fall Bash, even if many of the students who attend stay for only a short time and not the entire evening.

SGA Elections Set For Next Week

by G. Alan Murphy, Jr.
Staff Writer

The Student Government Association (SGA) is the student body's voice. It is the students' way of getting things done. The Student Handbook says, "The function of the Student Government Association (SGA) shall be to provide for the general welfare of the student body by: providing appropriate student activities; providing the student body with necessary information that may be of its concern; and providing in and of itself a means for student input and opinion in the organization and operation of student affairs."

The structure of the SGA consists of four executive officers—President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer. Eight representatives are also elected to the SGA. One each from the Schools of Arts and Science, Business, Health Sciences, and Technology, as well as two representatives from night students and two from the student body at large.

The student body at large votes on the four executive officers as well as for the representatives. Last year in the executive election only 45 students voted. That was only 1% of the total student enrollment last spring. Even Ross Perot would not be happy with that sort of voter turnout percentages.

The election this fall for the Student Body Representatives will take place on October 20-21 in the C-lobby and at the AVMT facility.

The SGA meets every Thursday at noon in room D-226. You are encouraged to stop by and see exactly what takes place in these meetings. Both the President, Ms. Kerrie Wester, and Vice President, Mr. Brian J. Carter, are very ambitious and upbeat for the upcoming year. They, as well as the other SGA executives and representatives, are working furiously to finalize plans for the year ahead.

Involvement in the SGA is encouraged. The SGA leaders desired each club and student group to have a representative at SGA meetings. A greater pool of Student opinions would then be available.

Any details about the SGA which have not been covered here can be read on pages 42-48 of the 1993-1994 CSC Student Handbook.

According to the SGA leaders the SGA does its best to represent the student's views and wishes, but only a handful of students seem to be concerned with the future. More students can bolster this college and its operation. Meetings are on Thursdays in D-226 at noon. All students are invited to attend.

Dialogue With The Dean Should Be A Hit

by Lori B. Cohen
Editor

Lyceum will present Robert C. Bolander, Dean of Students, Dialogue with the Dean on, Tuesday, October 19, at 12:00 PM, in G-132. The discussion, according to Dean Bolander, is a "formalized attempt to get feedback from as many students as possible." Dean Bolander has been on the faculty since 1970, and has taught, history, political science, criminal law, and an honor seminar in foreign policy. The Dean also made the comment that he wants all students to feel that they are a part of this college. "Dialogue is but one mechanism, by itself it is not much unless students fully participate."

This should be a great opportunity to express your opinions and feelings, to someone who wants to hear all views. This will be the first in a series of discussions with the Dean. "I am looking forward to an exchange of ideas. Sometimes it's difficult to rearrange my schedule for these things, but it's always the most fun part of my job."

Black
"Minorities, Why Have We Come?"

by Todd Holts
Columnist

There is no parking to be found. The mad dash for classes is over. Students from all walks of life grace our Clayton State campus. Fall quarter is here.

On September 22, as I walked around the campus, it appeared to me that the number of students here this fall is larger than the number of students that attended last fall. Almost everywhere I turned, I bumped into someone of whom I had never seen. All other times I would turn and see faces that I had come to know last year. Right now, it is almost impossible to go from class to class without physically bumping into or touching someone. Although, I am not very high on people I do not know bumping into or touching me, I am glad to see that the school I attend is growing.

Even though I am glad to see that our student body as a whole is growing, what I am most happy about is the large number of minorities that have chosen to come to Clayton State this fall. Last year it seemed that the only times I saw minorities in great numbers were either in the cafeteria or in the gym during basketball games. The reason for this, was the low percentage of minorities on campus last year. However, this year minorities have come in great numbers, and it is a beautiful sight to see.

Given the fact that I am happy to see the increase in minorities on our campus this fall, I am very bothered by some of the things that I have seen some of us doing. During the first week I witnessed two young Black men walking from the cafeteria listening to headphones and rapping. This act of listening to music did not bother me. What bothered me was that they were rapping lyrics that contained an abundance of four letter words. They were doing this not realizing that four teachers that they could one day have for a class, were standing off to the side listening. I am not trying to sound like a "Mr. Goody Two Shoes", because I am in no way perfect. I have been known, especially on the basketball court, to say some four letter words. However, walking through the halls of Clayton State is not the time nor the place for that type of language. The view of the Black male is not highly regarded already, and we as Black men should not venture to make it worse. The man who curses, does so because he lacks the vocabulary to express himself in any other way. Think about it.

This, along with other things I have seen, has caused me to want to find out the answer to various questions. 'Why are we as minorities here? Have we come to learn, or have we come to see how many dates we can pick up? Have we come to graduate in a few years or have we come to be cute for a quarter? Why have we come, minorities?'

I ask you these questions, not because I want an answer, but because I want to bring you to reality. I ask these questions because I want you to realize that this is not Six Flags. This is college. Furthermore, this is one of the hardest colleges in Georgia. Quicker than they let you in, they will let you back out.

So, I guess the purpose of my column this week is to express to all new students, especially the minorities, do not take your education at Clayton State lightly. I hope that I will be able to see just as many, if not more, new faces on campus winter quarter. When fall goes, so does the color of the leaves. Let's not let the wide variety of colors of faces go also.

CAMPUS NEWS

BSU Is Active Both On And Off The Clayton State Campus

by Kristin Fowler
BSU President

Are you interested in discovering more about yourself, and God's purpose for you in this world? Are you lonely and searching for some friends who will really listen? Are you searching to find a place of ministry with others in need? If your answer to any of these questions is "yes" then Baptist Student Union is the place for you to be.

Baptist Student Union (BSU) is one of several Christian organizations available to students at Clayton State. While supported by Georgia Baptist Convention churches, students from several different denominations are involved and active in the BSU. BSU meets each week on Wednesdays at 12:30 p.m. in the Student Center in Room D-226. At our weekly meetings we have a time of fellowship, sharing, and prayer. We also have discussions and Bible studies that address some of the questions above, such as, "What Is God's Will For My Life?"

and "How Can I Develop More Meaningful Relationships?"

We are also active in ministry and missions projects. Opportunities are available to work with inner city children in Atlanta and children in the Decatur area. A mission trip is already set and planned for December 12-18, to Johnson City, Tennessee.

On November 5-7, members of the Clayton State BSU will be attending our annual Fall Convention in Atlanta. This conference will feature inspirational worship and seminars led by Babbie Mason, Kyle and Susan Matthews and Esther Burroughs. The weekend will also feature a late night fellowship talent show on Friday evening. Both the Matthews and Babbie Mason will give concerts during the weekend. It is a great opportunity for fellowship and worship.

For more information on this event or the mission opportunities, contact either Kristin Fowler, BSU President at 957-2281 or David Roland, BSU Campus Minister at 892-6224 or 760-8918.

Job Information Services Computer Is Now On-Line In Clayton State's Office Of Job Placement

CSC is the first college in the state to go on-line with the Department of Labor's Job Information Service. Students now have access to important job information.

The Job Information Service (JIS) computer, that has been installed at the Georgia Department of Labor Fields Services Offices, provides instant access to job information in Georgia as well as nationwide. In an effort to increase and expand services, the Office of Job Placement and Cooperative Education has acquired these services for the College's nearly 5,000 students. The Director of Job Placement and Cooperative Education, Ms. Peggy Gardner, and Mr. Harry Hicks, the local Department of Labor Field Services Office Manager, supported by the Employer Committee has cooperated to complete this effort.

The team of Hicks and Gardner began about eighteen months ago planning and developing the use of this system with the proper State Department of Labor and CSC officials. The State Commissioner of Labor, Mr. David Poythress, and the President of Clayton State, Dr. Harry S. Downs, held a press conference and historic signing June 15, 1993. Comments from the Commissioner and Dr. Downs expressed the enthusiasm each has for the benefits the service will provide students and employees.

Some of the benefits to Clayton students include the extensive expansion of job listings for students. The benefits to employers and the Department of Labor is an adequate supply of qualified, educated professionals to fill current job openings. Since some 4,800 students used the job information service last year at Clayton State College, an instant supply of potential clients are available for the Labor Department. Since the beginning of fall quarter, more than twenty students have used the service, four have been referred through the Department of Labor and two have placed in jobs.

Plans are being developed to document and refer students. According to Mr. Poythress, the successful operation of this unit will expand the option to all of the colleges and technical institutions in the state of Georgia. Many calls have already been received by the Office of Job Placement and Cooperative Education at Clayton regarding this service.

The ideal college placement office furnishes students with employment options, Ms. Gardner said. "Students will always need assistance in polishing job search skills to compliment the quality education they receive."

Regents' Test Alert

1. What is the Regents' Test?

The Regents' Test is a test used by the University System of Georgia to determine students' competence in reading and writing. A certain level of competence in these areas as demonstrated on this test is required for graduation. Thus passing this test is a milestone toward graduation just as passing a course is a milestone toward graduation. The test takes less than three hours to complete and consists of an essay and a reading section.

2. Who needs to take the Regents' Test this quarter?

All students who plan to graduate with a two- or four-year degree from Clayton State College must take and pass the Regents' Test at some point in their academic career. Students who have completed their English and speech requirements are eligible to take this test.

Students who have 45 or more quarter hours and have not taken and passed both parts of the Regents' Test should plan to take it this quarter. Students who are required to take it will receive a card from the Counseling and Career Center notifying them of the dates and times for the tests. This card also acts as their ticket for admission to the test.

Contact Dr. Diane Sauers in D-208, or call 961-3515 for more information.

3. When is the Regents' Test offered this quarter?

Students are asked to choose the test session (date and time) that they plan to attend, and to register their choice in D-208 (phone 961-3515), by October 18, 1993.

Test Requirement	Test Dates/Times	Location

— Soul Of Goodness —

by Tommy Phillips
Student Creative Contribution

Note to the reader: This short tale is based upon my brief friendship with a man who was never quite understood by those around him. To most people, he was a person to be feared and despised. To me, he was a friend.

Throughout the town of Crossboro, James Marvelle was known as a hellraiser. He drank, smoked marijuana, fought, and womanized on a constant basis. At least once a week, the Crossboro police had to respond to a call involving James. Half of the town's population hated James, and the other half feared him.

My own relationship with James began at the Apex Textile Company where I was employed as a warehouseman. I had been an employee there for about six months, I guess, when the company hired James. I did not know what to think about him at first. On most mornings, he was still drunk from the night before, and as a result, he was almost always in a bad mood and trying to fight everybody.

Early on, I had decided to simply avoid James, but he apparently had other ideas. For reasons that are beyond me, James took a liking to me. He called me Poindexter because he had deemed it a name fitting for a person who wore glasses, and when he found out that I attended college, he became convinced that I was the ultimate source of wisdom on this planet. James constantly barraged me with questions dealing with everything from the nature of God to how one goes about determining the alcohol content in liquor.

After working with him for a few weeks, I warmed up to James. I came to discover that behind the rough facade that he presented to the rest of the world, there was a very lonely and misunderstood human being. I began to do little things with James. We would, for instance, eat lunch together and talk. James would ask me questions about church and school, and I would listen to him as he talked about his abusive childhood and his time in prison.

James would also tell me about how he dreamed of attending college to become a physical education teacher. I would smile and tell him to go for it, but in my heart I felt sadness everytime James told me of his dream. James, you see, could not read a single word or solve the simplest of math problems. As a matter of fact, when he bought something at the store, he would just hand the clerk a handful of money with hopes of getting back the correct change.

Eventually, my friendship with James grew stronger. One Saturday, we went fishing together at the local reservoir. During the course of the day, James told me how his father had stormed Tarawa as a Marine during World War II. He also told me how his father had once beaten his legs bloody with a broken television antenna. James, it seems, had spilled a glass of Kool-Aid on the living room carpet. By the end of the day, it had become apparent to me that James' entire life had been one big tragedy.

After six months employment with the Apex Textile Company, James was fired for excessive tardiness and disruptive conduct. He went straight from Apex to the local watering hole where he proceeded to get extremely drunk. At some point during the day, James smashed another bar patron over the head with a beer bottle. The police came and took James to jail. One of his uncles posted bail early the next morning, and James went home to sleep off the alcohol that was still in his system.

Not to long after he had gone to bed, James awoke to the sound of children screaming, and went to the door to tell them to be quiet. When he got to the door, however, James saw that the trailer next to his was engulfed in flames. He noticed Tammy, the trailer's owner, standing about fifty yards away screaming hysterically. James went out to comfort Tammy, and once he reached her, she told him that Jake was inside the burning trailer. Jake was Tammy's three-year old son.

Thinking back, James remembered how much it had hurt the time his own father had burned him with a cigarette lighter for wetting his bed, and he could not tolerate the thought of little Jake being burned to death. He had to do something. After thinking about it for five seconds or so, James told Tammy not to worry, and then he rushed to the burning trailer. The heat from the flames was intense but James felt no fear. He had suffered all manner of pain and abuse at the hands of his father as a child. James was well-acquainted with pain. He turned around to Tammy, gave her a thumbs up sign, and rushed through the trailer door into the inferno.

No one knows what happened inside the trailer but about three minutes later the neighbors saw what one later described as a fiery angel, burst out of the trailer carrying a small bundle. The bundle was little Jake wrapped in a wet blanket. The angel was James. James Marvelle the Hellraiser had become James Marvelle the Lifesaver.

It was a strange and curious sight to see the people of Crossboro pay homage to the man they once despised. Most of the town's citizens were gathered together on that bleak November day to watch the mayor award the Outstanding Citizen Medal to

CSC Library Lists Public Services

The Public Services Department of the Clayton State College Library provides a variety of services to the students, faculty, and staff. Among the services available are: ONLINE CATALOG: Beginning Fall Quarter, library patrons will be able to use the library's new online catalog. Seven terminals have been set up in the reference area. Using the online catalog, library users can search the holdings of nearly thirty academic libraries statewide. At this time 25% of Clayton State College Library's holdings are accessible via the online catalog. To locate books, users can search the online catalog and if they do not locate a specific title they should use the card catalogs to locate materials which may have been cataloged prior to 1989. The staff will be happy to assist library users with the online catalog.

REFERENCE SERVICE: This service assists library users in locating materials for research and general assignments. The reference desk is staffed almost every hour the library is open.

DIALOG and DIALOG CIP (Classroom Instruction program): These offers access to over 300 databases in areas such as medicine, chemistry, business, computer science, psychology, history, humanities, and others. There is a charge for using this service.

INTERLIBRARY LOAN: This service can provide the faculty, staff, and students with materials not available at the Clayton State College Library. It usually takes ten working days for material to arrive on campus. This service is free unless a fee is charged by the lending institution.

AUDIOVISUAL (AV) MATERIALS: A variety of AV materials are available for use in the library and include videos, sound/slide sets, filmstrips, audio cassettes and records. These material are housed at the circulation desk. If needed, the staff will help you use the equipment.

CD-ROM COMPUTER INDEXES: These indexes of periodicals are in the references area. The Library presently subscribes to Business Index, Academic Index and Medline/CINAHL. All of these indexes are connected to printers so complete citations can be printed for those articles of interest.

RESERVE MATERIALS: Some materials are placed in the library by faculty members for restricted use by students. They may include copies of books, articles, sample papers and the like. Ask at the circulation desk for reserve materials.

The Library's hours during the academic quarters are:

Monday-Thursday	7:15 a.m. - 10:30 p.m.	Saturday	10:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m.
Friday	7:15 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.	Sunday	12:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.

A Regents' Reading Test study group is now forming. Anyone who would like to participate in a small group peer-tutoring activity to share strategies for passing the Regents' Reading Test should call Wayne Stewart, Special Needs Counselor, at 961-3515.

In late October or early November, Mr. Stewart will coordinate Self Advocacy Week (SAW) for all interested special needs students. Watch for more information in future issues.

James. The medal was awarded posthumously. James, you see, never recovered from the burns he received while saving the child's life. His last words were, according to the doctors, "Is the little boy going to be okay?" The doctors told him that the boy would be fine. Having received the answer to his query, James Jefferson Marvelle went to be with his Maker.

LYCEUM EVENTS

Barr Is First "Producing Artist" On Campus This Year

Mr. Mark Barr will be the first Lyceum "producing artist" of the 1993-94 academic year. He will be on campus the weeks of October 18-22 and October 25-29.

Mr. Barr will be a "producing" artist-in-residence. He is an Atlanta Woodworker whose enjoyment of the medium is focused on his lathe turnings. In turning, the artist tries to best capture the natural grain of the wood to enhance the work. Mr. Barr is immediate past president of the Woodworkers Guild of Georgia. He has traveled extensively in the U.S. while conducting seminars for The Woodworking Shows and Woodworking World. His works have been exhibited at the Madison Morgan Cultural Arts Center and at Berry College's Moon Gallery.

Last spring, Mr. Barr finished a vase for Clayton State's retiring President, Dr. Harry S. Downs. The vase was made from the burl of a CSC campus tree.

Since 1986, Lyceum has brought in dozens of Georgia artists for residencies each year. These residencies range from one day to two weeks. The artists work with studio art students and hold discussions with a variety of classes. In addition, they mount exhibitions of their work in the College's library or in the display cases in the lower level of the "G" and "D" buildings. The "producing artist" program began two years ago. These artists, who spend two weeks on campus, focus on producing a work of art while in residence. Their completed pieces are added to the growing Clayton State Lyceum collection which features works done by both student and professionals.

Above is a bowl turned by Mr. Barr. His work will be exhibited in the lobby of the Library. He will be working in the College's art room (G-100) during his visit.

Tuesday Tradition Speaker Contrasts U.S. And Japanese Educational Systems

by Jenipher Klessig
Staff Writer

October 5 marked the debut of the Lyceum programs' Tuesday Tradition-series for 1993-94. Nearly every Tuesday of the quarter, Lyceum will present a guest speaker who is uniquely qualified to share their culture. This is designed to promote awareness and understanding of our own multicultural society.

The series got underway with a presentation by Ms. Sanae Kiejko. Ms. Kiejko is a Japanese native who has lived in the United States for six years. She was an elementary school teacher for four years in Japan, and she has taught at Tyrone Elementary in Fayette County for an additional four years.

Ms. Kiejko, a lively, petite woman opened her lecture with an introduction to her culture. She greeted us with a warm "Konnichiwa", and explained that it meant Good Afternoon in Japanese. She went on to tell us much about herself and her culture with an emphasis on its contrasts with American educational.

In Japan, children go to school for six years of elementary school and three years of middle school which are government funded. Students are "tested-in" to high school. Placement tests dictate which high schools you can apply to (Japanese parents must pay for most high school education). Much hard work must be done in high school. The same sort of tests govern which universities you can get into, which also basically determines your career path for life.

Beginning as early as middle school, students begin afternoon and evening "cram" schools called Juku, to prepare for the testing. This puts a tremendous amount of pressure on the students, but also encourages discipline, desire, and motivation which helps to shape the Japanese work ethic.

Ms. Kiejko is in the unique position to contrast and compare the educational systems of both countries and to apply the best of both to her students. That can only mean that the students she reaches out to, will have the benefit of her wisdom. Ms. Kiejko is a genuine, humorous person who more than exceeded the goals of the Tuesday Tradition.

Upcoming programs in this series include Mr. Robert C. Bolander, Dean of Students, conducting an open forum for students on October 19. Also, Mr. Thomas Dortch, the Chief Administrator of U.S. Senator Sam Nunn's Georgia office, will present a lecture on "Giving Back to the Community."

For more information on these and other upcoming Lyceum lectures/forums and Lyceum/Spivey Hall concerts, consult the Lyceum Program Guide which is available from racks in the C, D, and G buildings, the Library and in D-217.

Lyceum Presents AIDS Lecture As Part Of Health/Wellness Series

On Thursday, October 20, Lyceum will present a presentation entitled "AIDS, It Could Happen To You." The program, a part of the annual Health and Wellness series, will take place at noon in D-223.

A representative from the Atlanta AIDS and Substance Abuse Speakers Network will discuss factual information about AIDS. Those with AIDS today cover a broad spectrum -- economically, racially, politically, etc. A better understanding of AIDS and its transmission is the goal of this one-hour seminar. In addition to making the presentation, the speaker will be answering questions after the formal comments conclude.

The next program in the Health and Wellness series is a lecture/discussion on domestic violence. Ms. Lorrie Pentecost will talk on, "Family Abuse: TV Hype or Reality?" This will take place on November 11.

Part-Time Job Fair Offers Opportunities For Students

by Candi Wyatt
 Staff Writer

The Clayton State College Office of Job Placement will once again feature special job opportunities for CSC's students. The Part-Time Job Fair will be held this month for the third consecutive year.

On October 21, recruits from many companies will visit our campus. These representatives will allow students to fill out applications and to ask as many questions as they need to about the positions available. The session will be held inside

C-lobby from 9:00 a.m. until 12:00 p.m. Ms. Peggy Gardner, Director of Job Placement and Cooperative Education, has found the Part-Time Job Fair to be extremely successful. She has enjoyed participating in this event as one of its competitive as any other student at other schools. The staff in the Office of Job Placement have spent a lot of time inviting businesses to participate.

"The Fair is designed to provide specific employment opportunities for part-time, temporary, and Christmas employment for our students," says Ms. Gardner. "If a student needs part-time work while attending Clayton, the opportunities are definitely there."

Although the list of companies that are attending is not yet complete, some that are verified are Whaley Research, Delta Airlines, Stouffer Concourse Hotel, ATS Staffing, RPS, Mellon Financial Services, Trans Quick, Chick Fil-A, Radio Shack, Toys-R-Us, UPS, Rich's at Southlake, Randstad, and TRC Temporaries. Additional companies will be added. Please watch the campus bulletin boards or contact the Office of Job Placement for a more complete listing of companies that will be participating in this event.

Made in America Is Not Bad, But Could Be Better

by Kiki Steen
Staff Writer

On October 22, Made in America will be screened at Clayton State College, however, I would not advise putting off anything vitally important (like studying for an exam or picking up any new comics) to go see this film. It is not that it is a really bad movie, it is just not a really good movie either.

Basically, the movie goes something like this: Sarah Mathews (Whoopi Goldberg) goes in to get artificially inseminated and asks the sperm bank for a black donor. However, her daughter Zora (Nia Long), now 17, finds out that her father is actually a white man, and an exceptionally tacky white man to boot. Hal (the aforementioned white man, played by Ted Danson) is a used car salesman and suburban cowboy who is just as shocked and confused about the whole tangled mess as everyone else in the movie. Towards the end, Sarah and Hal fall for each other, which makes for a nice, happy ending.

As comedies go, Made in America is not bad, but it hardly lived up to the expectations I had going in. If you have the time, it might be worth your while to stop by and catch the movie. It will be playing in room G-132 at 1:15, 6:30, 8:30, and 10:30 p.m. The kiddie film is Disney's The Shaggy D.A., playing in room G-127 at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.

Glanville Wastes Falcon Talent

by Josh Pearson
Staff Writer

The Atlanta Braves and the Atlanta Falcons are two professional sports teams heading in opposite directions. The Braves are in contention to win a world championship while the Falcons are in contention to go winless in 1993. The Braves are considered one of the best teams in their particular sport while the Falcons are considered one of the worst in theirs.

With the great success of the Braves in recent years, Atlanta has found out how good it feels to be winners. In the old days, when both the Braves and the Falcons were mere punching bags for other teams, Atlantans did not mind being losers because they had grown accustomed to it. Now, however, the Braves have changed the attitudes of their fans and made them hungry for more. A lot of people are saying, "If the Braves can do it, then the Falcons most surely can."

Through five games this season, the Falcons are winless and have allowed more points to be scored against them than any other team in the NFL. The Falcons have all but ruined their season and the season is not even halfway through.

So who do you blame for five straight losses? The blame could be given to a lot of different people but it all goes back to one person, Head Coach Jerry Glanville. In his first three seasons as the Falcon's head coach, Glanville has had only one winning season. His overall record as head coach of the Falcons is 22 and 33. In eight NFL seasons as a head coach Glanville is 57 and 68. Needless to say, Jerry is probably not destined for The Football Hall of Fame.

Jerry Glanville was brought to Atlanta as a motivator and competitor with a real desire to win. Instead it seems that he has taken a talented bunch of athletes and left them wondering if they can win. A team with as much talent as the Falcons should easily be in contention for a play-off spot when January rolls around, not the team with the worst record in football as it seems they are well on their way to becoming.

What the Atlanta Falcons need is a Bill Walsh or a Don Shula or a Joe Gibbs, coaches who are proven winners and have coached some of the greatest teams in the history of the NFL. I would personally be thrilled to have Mike Ditka, the former Chicago Bears head coach, come in and take over as head coach. He is at the moment working as a sportscaster on NBC and wasting his coaching abilities. Maybe even Joe Gibbs, the former Washington Redskins head coach, could be coaxed out of retirement to coach the Falcons.

It could just be wishful thinking but maybe one day the Atlanta Falcons will have a leader that can utilize their talent and do what the Braves have done for the city of Atlanta. They could be winners.

Lakers Win First CSC Invitational

by Jeff Bradley
Staff Writer

The Clayton State Lakers walked victoriously from the field, after winning the first invitational soccer tournament hosted by this college.

The Lakers had a slow start this season, losing the first four games that they played. The turnaround came when they played Piedmont College and took the game 6-2.

The CSC Invitational began on September 24, when LaGrange College beat Central Wesleyan 3-2, after going into overtime.

The next day, Clayton State entered the field against Central Wesleyan College and won a very physical match-up. Minutes into the game, CSC's Jeffrey Davenport sent Central Wesleyan's Scott Duerk sliding into the dirt on his face. Extreme contact by both teams went unnoticed by the referee, while Matthew Anthony and Steve Comer, of the Lakers, both voiced their frustration with uncalled violations.

By the end of the game, one of their players--Lemmie Ebanks--and three of our players--Michael McDaniel, Stephen Zoeller, and Harvie Berry--had been helped from the field due to injuries. As three players collided mid-air and tumbled to the ground, Head Coach Mike Hanie was heard to comment, "We are running out of players."

But despite the injuries and Central Wesleyan's quick two point lead, the Lakers came back to win the game 4-2, with goals scored by Michael Spinks, Randy Roosekrans, Harvie Berry, and Steve Comer.

The Lakers donned their cleats and took to the field again the next afternoon, to do battle with LaGrange College. Three minutes into the game, Matthew Anthony scored on a penalty kick. Moments later, Harvie Berry took an amazing shot that somehow managed to bounce off both the left and the right goal posts, but couldn't find its way into the net.

LaGrange's Joey Goscha then scored on a thrown-in ball, evening the score up. Thirty minutes into the first half, Steve Comer scored the last goal of the game, leaving the score 2-1, making the Clayton State Lakers the victors of three consecutive games and the winners of their first home tournament.

The next local game is on October 16, at 7 p.m., against Berry College. The game will be played on Cumbie Field at McCurry Park in Fayetteville. The next home game is on October 17, at 2 p.m., against Cumberland College. This will take place at Laker Field, on the CSC campus.
